

WALL STREET RECOVERY IN STOCK LIST CONTINUES

Easier Credit Conditions Provide Groundwork for Another Brisk Advance With Close Near Best.

ACTIVE ISSUES UP 3 TO 15 POINTS

Heavy Accumulation of the Investment Railroad Shares One of Features of Session.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Easier credit conditions provided the groundwork for another brisk advance in prices in today's stock market. Extreme gains in many of the active issues ranged from 3 to 15 points, with final quotations generally around the high levels of the day. The market went through a couple of sinking spells but strong buying support was quickly supplied, and the reactions failed to make much headway. Call money dropped from 6 1/2 to 6 per cent and time money, which was quoted on a flat 9 per cent basis last week, was available at 1/2 to 3/4 per cent.

Trade Pace Is Slower. Trading failed to maintain the terrific pace set in the last two days of last week, but the day's sales ran over 4,250,000 shares. Heavy accumulation of the investment railroad shares, several of which were marked up 3 to 12 points, was one of the features of the session. Atchafalaya ran up 12 points, St. Louis-Southwestern 8, Union Pacific and Delaware & Hudson 7 each, New York Central and Rock Island and Canadian Pacific 5 each.

U. S. Steel Closes Higher. Westinghouse Electric showed a net gain of 1 1/2 points, National Lead 1 1/2, American & Foreign Power 1 1/2, and J. I. Case, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Air Reduction and Western Union about 10 each. Thorsell Rand ran up about 14 points on a few sales. Remington Rand crossed 54 to a new high record. There was rumor that current earnings were running at the rate of around $4 a share annually.

U. S. Steel Common, after dipping to around 215 in the early morning, rebounded to 220 and closed at 219 or a net gain of 1 1/2. Standard Oil of New Jersey was heavily bought, closing 4 points higher at 81 1/2. Other oils rallied sympathetically.

The weekly Federal Reserve statement is awaited with considerable interest, in the hope that it will throw some light on the extent of real liquidation in the market. New financing, which has been held up by the recent decline in price for the making its appearance on a large scale, the $50,000,000 Marine Midland Corporation issue being advertised this morning.

Tobacco shares, which soared in spectacular fashion on Saturday as a result of the increase in cigarette prices, ran into heavy profit-taking this morning.

The speculative fraternity, as usual, is in a situation such as the present, so far as opinion on the immediate outlook for the market is concerned. One group holds that the amazing rebound of Saturday must be accepted as evidence of technical weakness, as existed on opening the way for a resumption of vigorous bullish operations.

4 WOMEN ON JURY SELECTED TO TRY FALL FOR BRIBERY

Former Secretary of Interior Pleads Not Guilty—Doherty's $100,000 in "Black Bag" Involved.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—A jury of eight men and four women was selected today to try Albert B. Fall, former Interior Secretary, on bribery charges growing out of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve lease to Edward L. Doherty.

Apparently bearing in mind the jury shadowing which led to a mistrial in the Sinclair Teapot Dome case, Justice Hitz announced the Fall jury would be locked up. He said counsel had advised him the trial would last three weeks.

The jurors are: Thomas C. Adkins, salesman; Festus F. Bowman, traction company clerk; Mrs. Helen M. Jarboe, bookkeeper; Charles Roger Nichols, hotel clerk; George F. Parker, dining car waiter (Negro); Harvey L. Taylor, interior decorator; Mrs. Ollie O. Walker, housewife; Daniel Weisbach, telegraph company clerk; Barney O. Welts, coal merchant; Miss Virginia Cooper, stenographer; Mrs. Hazel A. Fuller, housewife; Thomas E. Norris, bank teller.

Shortly after Fall appeared in court, Justice Hitz overruled the former Secretary's motion to dismiss the bribery indictment on the ground it constituted double jeopardy.

Justice Hitz then said to Fall: "I understand you plead not guilty."

"Yes," replied Frank Hogan, Fall's attorney.

The judge immediately began filling the jury box from the venire of 26.

Although his attorney had announced yesterday that Fall's health would not permit him to stand trial, the defendant appeared in court early and Hogan said the former Cabinet officer would not ask for a postponement. Fall was helped to his seat by members of his family and Dr. H. T. Safford, his physician. HALF OF CONVICTS ARE TRUSTIES IN COLORADO PRISON System of Inspecting Cells Permitted Widespread Smuggling of Arms by Outsiders.

By THOMAS DAWSON, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CANON CITY, Colo., Oct. 7.—The extraordinary conditions which made possible Colorado's worst prison insurrection, in which five convicts and seven guards were killed, are slowly coming to light.

Preliminary investigation has disclosed overfriendliness on the part of certain guards toward certain desperate criminals; a system of inspection which allowed convicts to hide weapons in their cells; and smuggling in of firearms and ammunition, possibly by trustees, possibly by outsiders.

There were 1081 prisoners who had committed offenses from murder in the first degree to bootlegging, registered in Canon City penitentiary at the time of the outbreak. More than 200 convicts, however, were quartered on the penitentiary farm, several miles from the prison walls.

More than half of the inmates of the prison were on trusty ratings. That gave them unusual privileges. Some had the run of the prison. Others were privileged to work outside the walls. It is not possible to state at this time that the four revolvers used by Danny Daniels and his confederates to gain control of the prison came from trustees. It is, however, a possibility.

For the present many privileges hitherto granted trustees terminated.

Prison Searched for Weapons.

Six months before the outbreak a rumor ran through the prison that Danny Daniels and Walter Holub, St. Louis, alias James Par due, had received weapons from the outside and had hidden them in the jail. The prison was searched high and low. The concrete floor of the laundry was dug up but the weapons were not found. Both Par due and Daniels denied at the time that they had secreted any weapons.

Warden Francis E. Crawford, in sifting all evidence relating to the jail break, has repeatedly found instances of unusual friendliness between guards and dangerous criminals. There are charges, even of marked favors being shown these convicts before the jailbreak. This aspect of the investigation has been so prominent that a high prison officer said: "I know it seems astonishing and outlandish, but the pistols may have been brought into the jail by friendly guards."

Thus far no charges have been preferred against any prison guard of the 20 or more surviving. Certain guards, however, will be sub-Traction Magnate's Estate to Be Used to Promote Co-Operation Between Capital and Labor.

Employees Have Opportunity to Share in Increased Earnings Caused by Their Increased Efforts.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7.—The estate of Thomas E. Mitten, traction magnate who was drowned last week, variously estimated from $2,000,000 to $10,000,000, has been left in trust for "the promotion and advancement of the cause of co-operation between capital and labor and the furtherance and continuance of the 'Mitten plan.'"

The Mitten plan in operation here between the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co. and its employees and the International Railway Co. of Buffalo and its employees is described as providing opportunity for participation in increased earnings made possible by the increased effort of the employees, and to encourage the investment of this added compensation in such way as to make the employees owners, as well as workers.

The Philadelphia and Buffalo lines are operated by Mitten Management, Inc., of which Mitten was the head. Employees under the Mitten plan have equal representation in the affairs of the street car company here.

Mitten's will was made on Sept. 25, six days before his body was found in a lake on his estate near Milford.

Dr. Arthur A. Mitten, only son of Dr. Mitten, who was last week elected Mayor of Philadelphia, stated the provision leaving the bulk of the estate for the advancement of the relations of capital and labor was void under state law, which provides that no charitable bequests made within 30 days of the death of the testator are legal. Dr. Mitten, however, said he would not permit this to defeat his father's purposes, which, he said, are equally his own.

Mitten Management, Inc., is to be continued under the direction of the son with the same staff. A brother and two nephews of the senior Mitten are to receive salaries they now obtain but shall not be increased above $50,000 a year.

Dr. Mitten, the son, is to receive an annuity of $20,000. His wife, Mrs. Mitten, who was Mrs. Mitten's personal servant, receives an annuity for the remainder of his life of $3000, to be paid in monthly installments.

To each of his brothers and sisters he leaves an annuity of $3000. They are Mrs. Bessie Mitten, Goodland, Ind.; Mrs. William Waters, Brookvale, Col.; Mrs. Jesse M. Smith and Mrs. Emma D. Battenberg, Milwaukee, and George Mitten and Arthur G. Mitten, Goodland, Ind.

Mitten believed and advocated the principle of employee ownership, maintaining that employee

MACDONALD TELLS U. S. SENATE WAR IS IMPOSSIBLE IF PEACE AGREEMENT IS MADE EFFECTIVE

Text of Premier MacDonald's Address to the Senate

FOLLOWING is the text of Premier MacDonald's address to the Senate today:

Mr. President and Senators: I cannot say that these walls are unfamiliar to me. I have been here before; but when I sat in one of those galleries, having been brought here under the wing of the late Senator Hoar, destiny never whispered to me that one day, before I "ceased from troubling," I should stand as I stand here and now facing you and receiving your good will and your honor.

I do not know what I can say, Mr. President, but you are overburdening me with your kind and your good wishes. The only thing that I feel is why have I been so long in coming over.

There are two functions that the Prime Minister of Great Britain fills. The first, he is the leader of his party, and he is the head of a party government, but there is a second function, far more important than that: He represents his nation. He leads not only his party but the House of Commons itself. In the second capacity, Mr. President, I am here; and I have come here in the second capacity because deep down in my heart there is a conviction, which nothing will ever remove, that the many misunderstandings, small but so deplorably effective, that have been growing up and existing between us do not belong to the substance of things, but belong to the appearance of things; and I have come, full of faith, to try to reduce misunderstandings to substance, because I know when that can be done the misunderstandings will be completely charmed away. (Applause.)

"A Monument in History."

I have come in consequence of one great event that I believe will stand up like a monument in history. The event was the signing of the pact of peace in Paris—the pact of peace in the construction of which America played an honorable part. America, united with France, Mr. Kellogg alongside of M. Briand, gave the world that renewed hope and renewed energy, which is encouraging us to gird our loins together with more determination than ever before and pursue the path of peace. (Applause.)

Where do I find the great difference that the signature of the pact has made? It is this: You signed it; we signed it; other nations signed it. Did they mean, when they put their names, or the names of their representatives, at the bottom of that pact—did they mean it to be merely an expression on paper, or did they mean it to be a guiding idea in policy? We mean it to be a guiding idea in policy. (Applause.)

Speakers in our country and speakers in your country innumerable have said that war between the United States and Great Britain is unthinkable. (Applause.) My friends—excuse the lapse: Senators: (I saw in a paper the other day that an enthusiastic Senator had also forgotten how precisely to address a committee in the same way that I have done.) What has happened, and what has made the great change in the prospects of peace is this—that up to now a proclamation has never been made solemnly, with all the dignity, with all the authority and with all the backing that can be given when two Governments and the representatives of two Governments make it. I think, Senators of the United States, that declaration can now be made. (Great applause.)

Can Make War Impossible.

There can be no war; nay, more, it is absolutely impossible, if you, and we do our duty in making the peace pact effective, that any section of our arms, whether land or sea, or air can ever again come into hostile conflict. (Applause.)

Think upon that when we face many of our own problems—problems of jealousy, problems of fear, problems that the young and rising and successful generation put into the hearts of the old generation. They all disappear, and in virtue of the fact that they have disappeared we have met together and we have said, "What is all this bother about parity? Take it, without reserve, heaped up and flowing over." That was the only condition under which competitive armaments could be stopped, and we could create a public psychology which could pursue the fruitful and successful avenues of peace co-operation.

That is one of the results of this visit. Another result of the visit is that we have come to understand each other. Ah, Senators, as long as you conduct your negotiations by correspondence over thousands of miles of sea, you will never understand each other at all. In these democratic days,

TEXT OF MACDONALD-HOOVER STATEMENT

FOLLOWING is the text of the joint statement issued today by President Hoover and J. Ramsay MacDonald:

"We have frankly reviewed all questions that might give rise to friction between our peoples. 'Gratifying progress has been made and the conversations are continuing.'"

When heart speaks to heart as deep speaks to deep and silence talks to silence, personality, personal contact, exchange of views by the lip, sitting at two sides of a fireplace, as it was my great privilege to do this week-end with your President—these things are to be as important as anything else in laying the foundation of an enduring peace all over the world. (Applause.)

I did not mean, really, to deliver you a speech. I am aware that my remarks are rather developing into that. I really want to thank you—to thank you as the representative Senators of this great country and this wonderful people—for your kindness and for your hospitality. But I must say that in the building up those ideas you and I, meeting together here today, must remember the tremendous contributions that have been made by other people. We are not out for any exclusive alliance. You would reject it. So should I. It is not for the benefit of either of us.

In the old days, when two peoples used to talk together, all the other peoples used to put their hands up to their ears and say, "What are they saying? They must be conspiring against us." That was the spirit of war, and that spirit must be extirpated. In these days, when two nations talk together, it ought to give hope and confidence to the other nations of the world (applause) especially when neither of those nations—neither you nor we—will form any exclusive alliances directed against the existence or the interests of any other nations or group of nations on the face of the earth. (Applause.)

Our idea is the free, open, intellectually and spiritually attracted co-operation of friends. We are not a criminal conspiracy to protect each other against policemen. We are a union of co-operation, a body—I doubt if there is the exact word in our English language—a co-operation at any rate, of nations coming together, discussing together, living the open life, in order that their exchange of views, their common action, sometimes their conflict of opinion—why not? Conflict of opinion is a co-operator in the cause of peace when sane and honest men express contrary opinions in order that that sort of combination, that sort of co-operation—I do not like the word "combination"—that sort of co-operation, that sort of free, friendly relationship, might be established not only between you and myself, not only between your country and my country, but between your country, my country, and all the other civilized and honest countries, under the face of the sun. (Great applause.)

Tribute to Stresemann.

And we must pay our tribute—and I do it in a sentence—to two great men who have helped on this work: First of all, M. Briand, that gay, genial, happy, humorous, eloquent man, whose whole life has been devoted to the promotion of the cause of peace (Applause); and another, an old friend of mine, to praise whom, alas, this moment, is to lay a wreath upon his tomb—Gustav Stresemann.

Many a story could I tell you, many a picture could I paint to you, of that quiet, steady, heroic man, standing, surrounded by emity, not only abroad but at home, determined to play a perfectly straight game, determined to carry into practice the proverb that he who does not respect himself is respected by nobody else.

I would think I might, here on this platform of the Senate, in this way, paying my tribute to my dead friend, regard it as laying a wreath on his tomb. (Applause.)

Thank you—thank you very much, indeed—for the hearty reception you have given me, and the patient way in which you have listened to me. (Great applause, the Senators and others rising.)

NO CONFLICT OVER PARITY, HE ASSERTS, AMIDST HEARTY OVATION

Describes New Diplomacy and Declares Britain and U. S. Do Not Seek an "Exclusive Alliance."

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

Washington, Sept. 7. — In rhetorical words of great beauty and eloquence, Ramsay MacDonald, Prime Minister of Great Britain, preached this afternoon from the rostrum of the United States Senate his gospel of international peace. His speech was repeatedly interrupted by applause from the floor and the crowded galleries.

An announcement of incalculable importance to the people of the whole world was issued jointly at the White House this morning by MacDonald and President Hoover, upon their return from the Hoover fishing camp.

It said:

"We have frankly reviewed all the questions which might give rise to friction between our peoples. Gratifying progress has been made and the conversations are continuing."

Premier MacDonald told of the new diplomacy—the diplomacy of the fireplace—"where heart speaks to heart as deep speaks to deep and silence talks to silence."

This was his description of the talks he had with President Hoover in the seclusion of the Rapidan camp in the Virginia mountains. They sat down together and achieved understanding. He contrasted that method with the old futile way of seeking understanding by exchanges across the ocean.

Commenting on the peace pact was characterized by the speaker, in a voice charged with emotion, as something that would stand up like "a monument in history."

"America united with France," he said, "Mr. Kellogg alongside of M. Briand, gave the world that renewed hope and renewed energy, which is encouraging us to gird our loins together with more determination than ever before and pursue the path of peace."

Applause swept the chamber.

Again the speaker was acclaimed for his solemn declaration that when the nations, Great Britain and the United States and the others, signed the pact, they meant it to be not merely an expression on paper but a "guiding idea in policy."

If they lived up to that intention, he said, war could never again come to the world.

"There can be no war; nay, more, it is absolutely impossible," he said, "If you and we do our duty in making the peace pact effective, that any section of our arms, whether land or sea or air, can ever again come into hostile conflict."

No Conflict Over Parity. Lightly he swept aside the suggestion that there could be any conflict between the United States and Britain over the question of naval parity.

"Parity," he said, "Take it without reserve, heaped up and flowing over."

He repeated that there was nothing in the meeting between himself and the President which need give alarm to any other nation. In their minds was no thought of an "exclusive alliance."

"You," he said to the Senate, "would reject it, so should I."

Again he contrasted the new with the old diplomacy. In the old days, he said, when two peoples talked together, the others were apprehensive; they felt they were being conspired against.

"That," he continued, "was the

PLAY OF 15 ACTS PRESENTED ON FOUR MOVING STAGES

PARIS, Oct. 7.—The opening of the new Roichchild Theater Palace started the social and theatrical season last night. It also introduced to Paris mechanical drama which eliminates 20-minute waits between acts.

Four electrically controlled stages moving on vertical and horizontal steel tracks presented a play of 15 acts. The production, written by Sacha Guitry especially for the occasion, was selected to demonstrate the lighting possibilities and technical perfection of the new theater.

Two operators can run the show, it is claimed, one controlling the switchboard and the other manipulating the stage shifting gear.

This announcement was in response to a report circulated today to the effect that the Treasury head had resigned. The rumor has cropped up repeatedly since Mr. Hoover came into office and today's announcement was made with a view to ending such recurrence.

COSTE FLEW 5500 MILES TO SET NEW DISTANCE RECORD

Forced by Lack of Fuel to Land Near Tsitsihar, Manchuria, 52 Hours After Leaving Paris.

PUT UNDER ARREST BY CHINESE TROOPS

Mistaken for Russian and Detained a Week—Meanwhile He Was Reported Missing.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Oct. 7.—Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, who have been missing a week, are safe in Manchuria after establishing a new world's non-stop flight record and after a series of hazardous adventures including their arrest by Chinese soldiers who mistook them for Russians.

Advices received here say the French flyers are near Tsitsihar, northwest of Harbin, Manchuria, where they landed Sunday, Sept. 29. They had flown for 52 hours and had covered between 5500 and 6000 miles from Le Bourget, France. The former non-stop distance record was 4358 miles, held by the Italian flyers, Ferrarin and Del Prete.

The flyers landed in a village north of Tsitsihar because their fuel was running low. They were mistaken for Russian military aviators and were held in custody while Gen Wan Fu-Lin, head of the Heilungkiang Provincial Government, telegraphed to Mukden announcing that his troops had captured an enemy plane and asking for instructions. This explains why it took a week for assurance of their safety to reach the outside world. The dispatches said that the aviators were living at Wan Fu-Lin's mansion at Tsitsihar, and guests but had not yet been permitted to proceed.

Coste telegraphed the French Consul at Harbin that his plane, the Question Mark, crossed the Manchurian border at 1 o'clock on the afternoon of Sept. 29 and that he saw the Chinese and Russian positions below. The scene of his crossing was near Manchouli, which has been the center of several encounters between Russians and Chinese troops growing out of the controversy over the Chinese Eastern Railway.

On the afternoon of Sept. 29 the French flyers crossed the Khingan Mountains and were compelled to land at the village of Kanchingze about 7 o'clock in the evening. Coste expressed disappointment that a shortage of fuel prevented his reaching Japan.

The French Consul arrived at Tsitsihar this morning and conferred with Coste after which he consulted Wan Fu-Lin in order to dispel the misunderstanding. Apparently he was successful as he telegraphed the Harbin Consulate that Coste hoped to start for Japan tomorrow or Wednesday.

MITTEN MILLIONS WILL BE USED FOR INDUSTRIAL PEACE

control of industry held the solution of America's economic and industrial problems. As proof of his argument he offered his own experience with the employees of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., who own nearly one-half of that company's $20,000,000 of common stock.

When Mitten took charge of the P. R. T. in 1911 the system was in a sorry state, with a deficit of $1,500,000. Its rolling stock was dilapidated and its employees were dissatisfied, bankers were refusing assistance and the Philadelphia public was desperate. In 10 years, Mitten put the system on its feet.

Confidence of Employees.

The secret of Mitten's success was the confidence with which he imbued the company's 10,000 employees, who during the course of the reorganization accepted a reduction in pay and at the same time stood solidly behind their chief. With the company on a paying basis, Mitten kept his promise to the employees, rewarding them with a 10 per cent salary dividend from the earnings of the company.

Mitten's apparent liberality to the employees provoked a storm in the company's directorate, the result of which was that Mitten obtained sufficient proxies tooust the protesting members. Today the Employees' Co-Operative Welfare Association is represented on the board with the banking and other interests.

Principles of Plan.

The fundamental principles of the co-operative ownership plan, as outlined by Mitten to a reporter a few years ago, are:

"1. That the primary purpose of a public service corporation is to give public service, and without such service none but thieves can benefit.

"2. That the successful running of a railroad depends most upon the men who run the railroad, and

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—The first tangible result of the conversations between President Hoover and Premier MacDonald of Great Britain, looking to a better understanding between the United States and Great Britain, was the announcement late yesterday that the Presidential retreat in Virginia, of invitations to Japan, France and Italy to join the American and British Governments in a conference to limit their sea power as a step toward world peace.

The text of the invitation will be made public tomorrow night. Issuance of the invitations was left to the London Foreign Office under the decision reached by the President and the Prime Minister. The conference is to open in London Monday or Tuesday of the third week in January.

The conferees of the five Powers will seek an agreement limiting all categories of warships not affected by the Washington treaty of 1922. This pact imposed a gross tonnage limitation on capital ships and aircraft carriers, provided a 10-year holiday in construction of battleships and fixed a tonnage ratio for capital ships of five for the United States, five for Great Britain, three for Japan and two each for France and Italy.

New Proposal by U. S.

The United States intends to propose that the capital ship holiday be extended from 1922 to the expiration of the Washington treaty in 1936, presupposing another general conference at that time, which may see the elimination of the battleship as a fighting unit.

The recent negotiations between this nation and Great Britain, carried on in personal conversations between MacDonald and Ambassador Dawes in London, dealt almost entirely with cruiser strength. The virtual agreement reached would apply the Hoover "yardstick" to measure fighting strength.

Under it, the British would have a gross cruiser tonnage of 359,000, and the United States from 265,000 to 300,000. The only remaining point of difference deals with how 30,000 tons of cruisers shall be distributed by the United States, and whether in three 10,000-ton cruisers with eight-inch guns or in four 7500-ton cruisers with six-inch guns.

Under the "yardstick" plan the fighting strength of the two fleets would be theoretically equivalent. This comes into consideration, the age, speed and armaments of individual ships.

To meet the needs of the two nations, Great Britain would have a preponderance of small cruisers while the United States would have an advantage in larger ships of this class.

"3. Capital cannot get an adequate return for its investment, it cannot, in fact, get any return, unless these principles are served. Financiers may and sometimes do get rich by other methods, just as burglars may run away with your silverware, but what they get in that case is not dividends, but swag."

Mitten reasoned that under the co-operative ownership system stockholders must be made to realize that employees are entitled to good wages and employees must be made to realize that stockholders are entitled to dividends. They invested money. Capital and labor have identical interests, he maintained, and should be made to realize that what is injurious to one is injurious to the other.

"If the employee-ownership principle were applied to all industry," he maintained, "America would become a strike-proof nation. The capitalistic system would not only have been humanized, but would have reached its maximum of usefulness in the advancement of human progress and civilization."

This pact imposed a gross tonnage limitation on capital ships and aircraft carriers, provided a 10-year holiday in construction of battleships and fixed a tonnage ratio for capital ships of five for the United States, five for Great Britain, three for Japan and two each for France and Italy.

New Proposal by U. S.

The United States intends to propose that the capital ship holiday be extended from 1922 to the expiration of the Washington treaty in 1936, presupposing another general conference at that time, which may see the elimination of the battleship as a fighting unit.

The recent negotiations between this nation and Great Britain, carried on in personal conversations between MacDonald and Ambassador Dawes in London, dealt almost entirely with cruiser strength. The virtual agreement reached would apply the Hoover "yardstick" to measure fighting strength.

Under it, the British would have a gross cruiser tonnage of 359,000, and the United States from 265,000 to 300,000. The only remaining point of difference deals with how 30,000 tons of cruisers shall be distributed by the United States, and whether in three 10,000-ton cruisers with eight-inch guns or in four 7500-ton cruisers with six-inch guns.

Under the "yardstick" plan the fighting strength of the two fleets would be theoretically equivalent. This comes into consideration, the age, speed and armaments of individual ships.

To meet the needs of the two nations, Great Britain would have a preponderance of small cruisers while the United States would have an advantage in larger ships of this class.

"3. Capital cannot get an adequate return for its investment, it cannot, in fact, get any return, unless these principles are served. Financiers may and sometimes do get rich by other methods, just as burglars may run away with your silverware, but what they get in that case is not dividends, but swag."

Mitten reasoned that under the co-operative ownership system stockholders must be made to realize that employees are entitled to good wages and employees must be made to realize that stockholders are entitled to dividends. They invested money. Capital and labor have identical interests, he maintained, and should be made to realize that what is injurious to one is injurious to the other.

"If the employee-ownership principle were applied to all industry," he maintained, "America would become a strike-proof nation. The capitalistic system would not only have been humanized, but would have reached its maximum of usefulness in the advancement of human progress and civilization."

DEMOCRAT CHOSEN BY NORRIS TO HEAD LOBBYING INQUIRY

Caraway's Selection Nearly Unprecedented—Robinson (Ind.), Borah, Blaine, Walsh (Mont.) Are Others

Post-Dispatch Bureau.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—A searching investigation of lobbying at the capital is assured by the character of the committee appointed today by Senator Norris (Rep.), chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the Senate, to conduct the probe.

Norris, who supported Gov. Smith in the last national campaign, again proved his remarkable political independence by naming a Democrat, Caraway, of Arkansas, as chairman of the investigating body. Caraway is the author of the resolution by which the Senate, moved by the Shearer disclosures and by evidence of lobbying in the campaign for the nomination of the President, authorized a general lobby investigation by a subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee.

The dinner, of course, was arranged in honor of MacDonald, but only through the relinquishment of his right of precedence by Vice President Curtis was it possible to give him the privilege of escorting Mrs. Hoover and sitting at her right. Sir Esme Howard, the British Ambassador, had to relinquish similar rights as the personal representative of the King to bring about that objective.

Mrs. Dolly Curtis Gann, sister and official hostess of the Vice President, likewise took a lower place at table to enable Lady Isabella Howard, the ranking British matron, to sit at the right of the President. Acceptance of her withdrawal was regarded by her friends as establishing her rank as that of a Vice President's wife. Miss Isabella MacDonald, daughter of the Prime Minister, came to Washington without social rank.

Japanese Naval Conference Delegates Arrive in U. S.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 7.—Carrying with them the plans for Japan's participation in the world naval parley announced by President Hoover, Commander T. Yamaguchi of the Imperial Japanese Navy boarded a train here last night for Washington.

Commander Yamaguchi arrived in Vancouver, B. C., from Japan just in time to make connections with the Great Northern train here.

While he was not surprised at the President's announcement, he was surprised that the proposed five-power conference on naval limitations had been made public. He indicated unofficial invitations had been out some time ago, and that the conference would be in London the third week in January.

Commander Yamaguchi will be one of the naval experts representing his Government at the conference. He maintained strict silence on the nature of Japan's instructions to the delegates, but acknowledged that he was to make known to the Spanish Ambassador in Washington the attitude which Japan would adopt at the conference. Japan, he said, was willing to cooperate with any movement for world peace.

he is under indictment for bribery in the same case.

Testimony of two men, now dead, will be read, that of Edwin Denby, Secretary of the Navy under President Harding, and Edward L. Doherty Jr., who personally carried the $100,000 from his father in a "little black bag."

PLANE HITS POLE AND BURNS; TWO UNHURT AT LEBANON, ILL.

Two men escaped without serious injury yesterday when the airplane in which they were flying struck a telegraph pole at a field three miles east of Lebanon, Ill., crashed to the ground and burned.

The pilot of the plane who had been carrying passengers on short flights from the field, said he was Ray Harris, from Lambert-St. Louis Field, but officials there said they knew no one of that name.

When the plane struck the ground the two men crawled out of the wreckage. One was slightly burned on the arms, but did not seek medical attention. They boarded a bus bound for St. Louis.

The accident, occurred as the plane was taking off to fly back to St. Louis. The pilot at short time before had put up signs that he would not carry passengers from the field next Sunday. The name of the passenger was not learned.

OPTICIAN SUES TO ENJOIN EMPLOYE FROM USING RECORDS

Two notices, one informing him of the filing of an injunction suit against him by his employer, and another notifying him of his discharge, greeted Edward A. Burke, employed since 1908 by the Charles Relly Optical Co., Arcade Building, when he returned from his vacation in California.

The application, filed in Circuit Court, asks that Burke, who resides at 226 Maple place, be enjoined from making any use of optical diagnoses and other confidential reports concerning customers of the company. Relly's petition also states that he fears Burke will use the information in connection with a business of his own or that it may be delivered to Relly's competitors. The application asks that the court order Burke to return copies of the records now in his possession.

Without committing myself to any action, I shall be glad to receive particulars and rates of the New Policy.

spirit of war, and that spirit must be extinguished. In these days when two nations talk together, it ought to give hope and confidence to the other nations of the world."

In his conclusion, the Prime Minister paid a moving tribute to M. Briand of France and the late Gustav Stresemann of Germany.

Not alone his sentiments for peace, but the enthusiasm of the man, the ring of sincerity in his words, the deep, musical tones of his voice, captured the crowd. Senators and gallery audience alike arose as he concluded and broke into applause.

The House Chaplain, the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, in opening the session prayed for world peace and a better understanding not only between Great Britain and the United States but all nations.

Long before the time set for the speech, the galleries were packed. Among those in the reserved section were Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, and Mrs. William Howard Taft, wife of the Chief Justice.

In the separate gallery reserved for their use were members of the diplomatic corps, including Minister Massey of Canada and Ambassador Gaudet of France. Mrs. Simon, wife of the Secretary of State, was with the diplomatists, and just before MacDonald entered the chamber they were joined by the Prime Minister's daughter and Lady Isabella Howard, wife of the British Ambassador.

Tariff Debate Interrupted.

A tariff debate was interrupted by an announcement from the majority leader, Senator Watson, that the British Prime Minister was to be the guest of the Senate. The session promptly went into recess, and the Vice President named the two leaders, Watson of Indiana and Robinson of Arkansas, and the chairman and ranking minority member of the Foreign Relations Committee, Borah of Idaho and Swanson of Virginia, to escort the distinguished guest to the rostrum.

The audience stood and applauded as the Premier, with Sir Esme Howard and other British officials, entered the hall. MacDonald went to the platform, while Sir Esme and the others took chairs at the foot of the chamber.

There was not a single uniform, diplomatic or military, in the party. MacDonald was introduced by the Vice President as the "able leader of a great people."

"We hope, Mr. MacDonald," he said, "that your visit in our city may be enjoyed greatly by you and that your efforts may result in bringing about a settlement of the naval question which has worried the people of your country and of our country."

He introduced the Premier amid a volley of applause, and the latter began his speech.

In accordance with the announcement made yesterday at the Presidential retreat in Virginia, France, Italy and Japan are to be invited to join Great Britain and America in a naval limitation conference, to be held in London in the latter part of January.

Received First in House.

The Prime Minister reached the Capitol at noon. He proceeded first to the House, where he was greeted at the wide stone entrance steps by Chairman Porter of the Foreign Affairs Committee and Congressman Lathrop of Maryland, ranking Democratic member.

The Premier, Sir Esme Howard, and the American and British officials who accompanied them were escorted to the speaker's office. Speaker Longworth is absent and Congressman Hadley of Washington was designated as speaker pro tem for the day.

Dispatches from England recently indicated MacDonald's intention to take up the problem with the President.

In passing the last naval bill, the Congress added a provision, drawn up by Senators Borah and Reed of Missouri, requesting the President to take steps, through an international conference, to establish the freedom of the seas.

The Idaho Senator is expected to bring up the topic when, with Justice Brandeis of the Supreme Court, he calls on the Premier Wednesday afternoon.

Senators Say MacDonald Has Made Limitation Possible.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Members of both parties in the Senate were quick today to respond favorably to Prime Minister MacDonald's talk in that chamber, particularly as to his promise for naval parity.

"Prime Minister MacDonald impressed the Senate in his earnest desire for an arrangement between the United States and Great Britain with respect to naval parity," Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, said. "No other arrangement is practicable or possible. His remarks indicate readiness to recognize the equality of the United States to Great Britain in sea power, which is all that our people ask or desire."

Senator Reed, (Rep.) Pennsylvania, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, declared: "I think that to have the Prime Minister reiterate in this country that Great Britain wishes to grant parity to us makes possible a limitation of armament which may serve to relieve the peoples of the two countries of a burden which is growing intolerable, and thus lead to a general world-wide self-restraint which will be a blessing to all humanity."

He was escorted to the Vice President's room, where he was greeted by Senators Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader; Robinson, Arkansas, Democratic leader; Borah, Idaho, and Swanson of Virginia, ranking Democrat on the Foreign Relations Committee.

War Debt and Tariff Not Discussed by Hoover and Guest.

The subjects discussed by the Premier and President Hoover at the Rapidan camp and again this afternoon at the White House were not made known. They included, of course, the naval negotiations now going forward between this country and Great Britain.

It was said at the State Department that the Rapidan conversations covered neither the war debt nor the tariff.

That they did cover the contentious question of the "freedom of the seas" is highly probable. That question could hardly be escaped in any candid discussion of the naval situation.

The American position, of which Senator Borah lately has been out spoken exponent, calls for immunity for neutral goods on the seas in war time. Britain's traditional attitude has been otherwise.

TWO HIT BY AUTO, THEN BACKED OVER; DRIVER SPEEDS ON

Luke Mason and Mrs. Nellie Scheiber Victims of Fugitive Motorist at Grand and St. Louis.

LICENSE TRACED, CAR OWNER HELD

H. W. Liekweg Says He Had Parked Machine After Drinking, Gone for Ride With Another Man.

Two persons were seriously injured by an automobile which was backed over and then sped on after being struck at Grand and St. Louis streets last night.

The victims were Luke Mason, 66 years old, of Kirkwood, who is in a hospital with fractured skull and pelvic injuries to both legs and arms, and Mrs. Nellie Scheiber, 45, 1821 Bacon street, at Mulberry hospital with fractured right hip, injuries to the left arm and probable internal injuries.

On information supplied by two witnesses, police early today arrested Harry W. Liekweg Jr., 36 years old, of Kirkwood, who is in a hospital with fractured skull and pelvic injuries to both legs and arms, and Mrs. Nellie Scheiber, 45, 1821 Bacon street, at Mulberry hospital with fractured right hip, injuries to the left arm and probable internal injuries.

Liekweg admitted owning the car, which the license had been issued, but stated that he had parked it at Twenty-first and Branch streets at the evening after drinking heavily. Another man picked him up, he said, and they visited several St. Louis County roadhouses before he returned home at 12:30 a. m. today.

Liekweg is being held at Dayton street station, charged with felonious assault and leaving the scene of an accident.

Joseph Tarkowski, 1942 Dodder street, stopped his automobile after it knocked down a woman at Sixth and Cass streets at 11:30 p. m. last night. He got out of the car and picked up the woman. She was his wife, Irene, 19 years old.

Mrs. Tarkowski suffered injuries to both hips. She was taken home for treatment at City Hospital.

An open verdict was returned by a coroner's jury today in the death of Charles Schwartzman, a chauffeur, 2124 Mississippi avenue, who died Saturday night at Jewish Hospital of internal injuries suffered when a truck he was driving upset near Crystal City, Mo. There were no witnesses of the accident.

HALF OF CONVICTS ARE TRUSTIES IN COLORADO PRISON

Canon City penitentiary was introduced but not to a marked prison, officers say. Apparently the slight overhauling had nothing whatever to do with the insurance. Idleness, frequent cause of jail-breaks, is likely to have been a contributing factor of the 600 men inside the walls at the time of the break.

More than 200 were on the idle list. The others had been employed that morning in the license plate factory, the bakery, the dressmaking shop and the laundry on the coal pile.

not he had utter confidence in his trusties. Few failed him. Certain men, who seemed to him unworthy, never received the trusty rating. The disciplinary measure most common at Canon City was solitary confinement in a dungeon on bread and water. Tough convicts who scoffed at discipline might get five days in the dungeon to make them respect the regulations.

Pardue had the punishment repeatedly. Pardue was known, in his later days in the prison, as exceedingly hard-boiled. He had been tractable at first, but six months after he was committed, in 1925, he had a fight with his Negro cellmate and killed him. After that he was regarded by fellow prisoners as the apogee of toughness. His reputation undoubtedly did to his being "taken up" by Daniels.

Ringleaders Often in Dungeon.

Pardue, Daniels, A. H. Davis, Red Riley and Majors were all familiar figures in the prison. Perhaps there is significance in the fact that the four ringleaders were men hit by the drastic punishments meted out under Colorado law.

The possibility that food at the institution had contributed to the jailbreak was disregarded by officials. The men in the prison appear to be well fed. A typical bill of fare follows: Breakfast, cornmeal mush and syrup, bread and coffee; luncheon, chile con carne, milk and bread; dinner, frankfurters and sauerkraut, bread and tea. Coffee was served every morning. Milk was served at luncheon five days at least a week. Tea was always served with the evening meal.

Last Christmas Daniels sang at the convicts' entertainment.

Daniels had record, however, caused the Warden to issue an order that Daniels was not to sing again at any convict concert.

A Routine Day.

A recent routine day at the penitentiary was as follows: The first bell rang at 6:50 o'clock. At 7:10 the first trusties, due to go to work at 7:45, marched to the mess hall. The other men breakfasted at 7:30. All but the 150 or more idle men were at work by 8 o'clock. The idle men were locked in their cells until 10 o'clock.

They were then turned into the bullpen under guard. Meanwhile 100 men were at work in the license plate shop, another 100 in the laundry, another 100 in the kitchen and bakery and a smaller number of men in the blacksmith shop.

Certain gangs would leave under guard to do work on the roads, to tend the Canon City park grounds, directly across from the penitentiary, or to work on the coal pile.

Both idle men and workers lunched from about 11:50 to 12:20. Thereafter they were taken back to their cells. The workers then went back to work, quitting about 5 o'clock. An average work day consisted of seven hours. The idle men got about three hours daily in the bullpen, and the rest of the time they were locked in their cells.

Dinner was over a few minutes after 6. The men were then locked in their cells. They could read papers or magazines until 9 or, if two men were together in a cell, could converse in whispers. At 9 the lights went out.

On several other occasions, Jerry Gelsler, one of Pantages' three attorneys, forced the girl to admit that she had not returned home until a late hour following social gatherings at the playwright's apartment.

Shortly before the opening of court, District Attorney Buron Pitts said that an indictment returned Saturday was for Harold Dolly, a private detective, who was named by Ivan R. T. Samsonoff, a prosecution witness, as the man asked him to give "Mr. Pantages a break."

State's Objections Overruled.

Over repeated objections of the prosecution, the girl told of going to Duneav's apartment with him and Mickey O'Neil, a Hollywood booking agent, who had reviewed her song and dance act for Pantages at a neighborhood theater. Duneav is charged by the defense with "framing" the girl's attack charge against the theatrical magnate to collect a $500,000 damage suit.

"Duneav is a bachelor, is he not?" Gelsler asked the girl. "Yes," she replied.

"You entertained and had refreshments in his apartment, did you not?" "I don't remember."

"How long were you there?" "I don't remember."

Tracing her movements from Duneav's apartment, Gelsler continued: "Later you and Duneav drove O'Neil to the Continental Hotel in Los Angeles, didn't you?" "Yes."

"What time did you get there?" "Wasn't it 2 o'clock in the morning?" "No, not that late, but I don't remember what time it was."

"That is a theatrical hotel, is it not?" "I don't know, Mr. Gelsler."

"Mr. Duneav took you away from the hotel, isn't that true?" "Yes." And before Gelsler could stop her the witness added: "To my father's home."

GIRL QUESTIONED ABOUT FRIEND AT PANTAGES' TRIAL

Theater Man's Accuser Asked About Social Relations With Nick Duneav, Playwright.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 7.—The social relations of Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer, and Nick Duneav, playwright, became the center of the defense case today as trial of the girl's charge of criminal attack against Alexander Pantages, multimillionaire theater owner, entered its second week.

After 30 minutes' cross-examination of Miss Pringle, the defense established that she had remained away from home all night following a party at Duneav's apartment.

ville circuit which she had purchased from Duneav.

"Well, in my professional work," she replied, "I had many costumes, but I did not dress particularly to look any different from what I do now."

When Gelsler pointed to the modesty of the ensemble worn by the girl today she admitted "it was suggested I wear something like this."

Questioned as to whether she went to the theater building the day of the alleged attack, accompanied by Duneav, she replied: "No, sir." Previously she had testified to the contrary.

"Isn't it a fact that Duneav did accompany you into the entrance of the building and to the foot of the stairs and didn't Duneav say, 'Don't get cold feet, and you said, 'I won't'?"

To a question regarding a party on May 22, in which the defense asked if she and Duneav did not meet two other men at the Pantages Theater Building, she replied: "I'm sorry, but I don't remember it."

"Now, at those social gatherings at the Abbott Apartments (Duneav's home) I'll ask you whether or not liquor was served? I'm not asking you whether you drank any, I'm asking whether it was served?"

Deputy Prosecutor Robert P. Stewart leaped to his feet, shouting an objection and denouncing the questioning as misconduct by the defense and immaterial. The motion was sustained.

TO TRY ACCOMPLISH FOR BURIAL OF SWINDLER ALIVE

Former Convict Liable to Two Years in Prison for Part in Fatal Publicity Stunt.

By the Associated Press.

VERSAILLES, France, Oct. 7.—Henri Boulogne, taitoece former convict who confessed to obliging Pascal Clement, the false Marquis de Champaubert, by burying him alive, will be prosecuted for homicide by imprudence and for what the French code calls illegal possession of the corpse. If convicted of these crimes he risks sentence of two years in prison with a fine of 500 francs or less.

The police said other persons implicated in the attempted hoax designed to boost the sales of the memoirs of Clement swindler with a long record, will be arraigned.

According to the state news of Boulogne, Clement died in his voluntary tomb within two days. It was supposed that the rubber tube leading above the ground through which he expected to breathe proved insufficient. The police were led to the discovery of the body by anonymous letters which said that "Knights of Themis" had buried a man alive.

King was an unsuccessful candidate for Sheriff last year. Before that he served on the Shreveport (La.) police force. Chance was Deputy Sheriff here before he entered the Federal service.

POLICEMAN IS HURT IN CRASH

Patrolman Thomas Harberding was badly bruised when the police automobile in which he and two other policemen were speeding in answer to a false burglar alarm at the North St. Louis Trust Co., 3500 North Grand boulevard, ran into a parked automobile at Jefferson and Cass avenues at 11:30 a. m. today.

The driver, Patrolman Dennis Bradley, said he swerved to avoid hitting a truck being driven by Elmer Heuer, 3922 North Market street, who was arrested for failing to give right of way to an emergency vehicle. Harberding, seated in the rear with a riot gun across his knees ready for action, was upset and bruised by the impact.

He was treated at City Hospital and sent home. Mrs. Zoe Pountz, 2007 Yale avenue, Maplewood, owner of the parked car, was in it at the time. She was treated for a wrenched back.

Questioned About Her Dress.

Shoot It Out in Office After Former Accuses Latter of "Sanding in With Bootleggers."

By the Associated Press.

NACOGDOCHES, Tex., Oct. 7.—A Texas Deputy Sheriff and a Federal prohibition officer were killed yesterday in a pistol fight. The two met in Sheriff Eugene's office, and the fight was between Claude King, Deputy Sheriff, and L. Chance.

King, according to friends, heard that Chance had accused him of "sanding in with the bootleggers."

The two met in Sheriff Eugene's office yesterday. "I hear you have been saying some pretty hard things about me," said King. Sheriff Turner warned the men not to have a dispute or fight in his office, and might have averted the fight, but a telephone rang in a nearby room and he stepped out to answer it. Shots rained before he reached the telephone.

When he returned he found Chance dead. King, with three bullet wounds, had staggered to his automobile. He was taken to a hospital, where an operation was performed in a futile effort to save his life.

King was an unsuccessful candidate for Sheriff last year. Before that he served on the Shreveport (La.) police force. Chance was Deputy Sheriff here before he entered the Federal service.

POLICEMAN IS HURT IN CRASH

Patrolman Thomas Harberding was badly bruised when the police automobile in which he and two other policemen were speeding in answer to a false burglar alarm at the North St. Louis Trust Co., 3500 North Grand boulevard, ran into a parked automobile at Jefferson and Cass avenues at 11:30 a. m. today.

The driver, Patrolman Dennis Bradley, said he swerved to avoid hitting a truck being driven by Elmer Heuer, 3922 North Market street, who was arrested for failing to give right of way to an emergency vehicle. Harberding, seated in the rear with a riot gun across his knees ready for action, was upset and bruised by the impact.

He was treated at City Hospital and sent home. Mrs. Zoe Pountz, 2007 Yale avenue, Maplewood, owner of the parked car, was in it at the time. She was treated for a wrenched back.

OLIVE ST. TRAFFIC LIGHT SYSTEM TO BE READY NOV. 1

It Will Be Operated by a Master Control at Jefferson Avenue Intersection.

Installation of 11 automatic stop-go traffic signals along widened Olive street will be completed by Nov. 1 and they will be put in service on or about that date. Reynburn P. Hoffman, city traffic engineer, announces today.

The signals will be hooked up with a master control at Jefferson and Olive streets, whence the entire system may be operated. Experiments will be made to determine the most efficient plan of operation. At first the signals will be changed every 70 seconds to permit a maximum speed of 25 miles an hour on Olive street.

The new signals will be at Twelfth boulevard, Fourteenth street, Sixteenth street, Eighteenth street, Twenty-first street, Jefferson avenue, Leffingwell avenue, Garrison avenue, Compton avenue, Channing avenue (Locust-Lindell cutoff), and Theresa avenue, with the present signal at Grand and Lindell boulevards remaining in use.

Lights will alternate green, amber and red and left turns will be prohibited at least at the outset. A plan to prohibit left turns out of Olive street and to permit left turns into Olive street is under consideration.

A complex system of signals has been worked out for the involved Lindell-Locust cut-off where traffic enters from six directions. One set of signals, similar to those elsewhere on Olive street, will control most of the automobile traffic while another set, suspended overhead, will guide street cars and other traffic moving to and from the western section of Olive street.

The complete signal system will cost the city about $10,000, of which $4000 will go for signals and $6000 for labor, power installation and supplies. The signals will be so constructed that they may be cut off from the master control and operated individually when traffic conditions demand.

Search for Alton Girl, 5.

Madison County authorities have asked police to assist in the search for Susie Marie Ward, 5-year-old daughter of Mrs. Susie B. Ward, who disappeared from her mother's home at 1220 East Broadway, Alton, Sept. 29. Mrs. Ward is separated from her husband, Lon W. Ward, a barber.

Former Supreme Judge Fred L. Williams and former Senator X. P. Wilfey represented the sisters. Mrs. Kenna resides in New York and London, and Mrs. Colket in Philadelphia.

The question whether Vincent Kerna shall receive outright possession of his $1,900,000 share of the estate of his father, Richard C. Kerna, once Ambassador to Austria-Hungary, was discussed before Federal Judge Faris today.

At the outset, Judge Faris overruled the chief point raised by Kerna's two sisters, Mrs. Madeline Kenna and Mrs. Gladys Colket. They declared, in a petition to the court last January, that Vincent Kerna's divorce and second marriage, being in violation of the laws of the Roman Catholic Church, would not have been considered "good behavior" by the elder Kerna, a loyal Catholic. The father, who died in 1917, provided in his will that Vincent should receive his share only after "five consecutive years of sobriety and good behavior." The daughters have received their shares.

"That point will cut no figure in this case," Judge Faris said when the arguments began. "Was any mention of the Constitution of the United States made in that connection?" the judge continued.

P. Taylor Bryan, counsel for the St. Louis Union Trust Co., replied that apparently the sisters had not ventured to mention the Constitution "in the same breath" with their citation of church rules.

The St. Louis Union Trust Co., as trustee, had the duty of deciding whether Vincent Kerna had fulfilled the condition of the will and it decided more than a year ago that he had done so. In explaining this decision, Bryan told of the inquiries the company had made, and said the other heirs had been duly notified. He pointed out that the trust company, in deciding in Kerna's favor, was not serving its own interest, as it would profit by continuance of the trusteeship.

Bryan said that the other heirs had been notified, but that when a hearing was held, counsel for the other heirs were not permitted to make arguments or cross-examine Vincent Kerna. Bryan pointed out that no person was presiding at the hearing with authority to pass on the fairness and propriety of questions.

U.S. AND BRITISH LABOR MEN OPEN
TORONTO MEETING

Welcoming Speeches Made at Convention of American Federation Which Will Last 11 Days.

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Ontario, Oct. 7.—
Delegates from all organized labor bodies of the United States, with fraternal representatives of the labor movement of Canada and Great Britain on hand as well, assembled here today for the forty-ninth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor. A program extending through 11 full days of sessions and touching upon matters of industry and politics affected by labor interest was laid before the union representatives. Welcoming speeches and responses were made this morning.

William Green, president of the federation, and his executive council presented also at the opening session their report of a year's activity. It suggested increased restriction of immigration, particularly of Latin-American immigration; attention to problems raised by displacement of human labor by machines; a program of support for old age pension systems in all industries; maintenance of nonpartisan political effort to obtain friendly representatives in Congress, and a campaign to double membership of labor unions. The long labor fight against use of court injunctions in labor disputes was included.

Unionization of the textile workers in the South is described as "an outstanding labor development of the year" in the report of the executive council.

Membership in the Federation for 1929 was placed at 2,933,545.
In 1928 it was 2,896,063. The highest mark in Federation membership was attained in 1920 when it reached 4,078,745.

Among speakers of prominence to be heard are Sir Henry Thorne-ton, president of the Canadian National Railways; James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor for the United States, and Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor for Canada. Ramsey Macdonald, Labor Premier of Great Britain, has indicated his inability to attend, although the federation convention will adjourn
Wednesday, Oct. 16, for one day during the Toronto reception to the British statesman.

TWENTIETH SUIT IN FAMILY DISPUTE IN 15 YEARS

Mrs. George C. R. Wagoner in Divorce Action; Decree He Got Set Aside, Attorneys Say.

A petition for divorce, the twentieth suit filed since 1914 as a result of the family differences of George C. R. Wagoner, an undertaker, and Mrs. Lulu Lettingwell Wagoner, has been filed in Circuit Court by Mrs. Wagoner, it became known today when the case was set for hearing Wednesday before Circuit Judge Hogan.

The petition, which alleges general indignities, was filed last week, the papers being withdrawn immediately. The Wagoners were married in 1887 and separated in 1914.
Wagoner filed a general denial and an entry of appearance, indicating he would not contest.

Mrs. Wagoner sued for divorce in 1915, dismissed this action and filed a suit for separate maintenance, receiving an award of $400 a month. Wagoner, in 1916, obtained a divorce at Reno, Nev., and litigation resulted when she challenged his contention that this nullified the previous separate maintenance judgment. Mrs. Wagoner received an award of $15,000 gross maintenance in 1921 in satisfaction of her suit. Wagoner's divorce was set aside, attorneys said today.

Wagoner resides at 4161 Lindell boulevard. Mrs. Wagoner lives at the Avalon Hotel, 329 North Taylor avenue.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 7.—

its charge against seven men accused of the murder of Police troubles at the Lora Mills.

the defendants. Several pistol cartridges were found in his possession. Upton said, A. C. Little, a he had seen the police approach the union hall, saw a fight start between a union guard and a policeman, and heard cries of "shoot him." He was unable to identify any of the defendants as the guard he had seen.

Fall Is Planting Time

How many people realize that right now is the best time to plant trees—Pecanias—Evergreens and most Perennials and also that Trees and Shrubs can be planted a little later after the leaves begin to fall. When you consider the ideal weather conditions we have in the Fall as compared with our uncertain Spring season, you will realize that Fall is the best season for planting, because the soil, being warm from the summer heat, will enable the plants to make good root growth and become established before the ground freezes, and your plants will come out more natural in the Spring.

If interested in beautifying your home grounds the WESTOVER NURSERY COMPANY will be pleased to mail you our 80-page descriptive illustrated catalog, which is free for the asking, or you may drive out to our nursery at 8500 glad to assist you in your planting problems. Remember, the plants offered by the WESTOVER NURSERY

LINDBERGH FINDS SIGNS OF ANOTHER RUINED CITY

In Flight Over Unexplored Region of Yucatan Peninsula He Notes Evidence of Ancient Civilization.

By the Associated Press.
MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 7.—Continuing his exploration of Mayan ruins in Central America, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh made a landing at 12:23 p. m. to explore the region near Lake Declinach, according to a radio message from his plane to the Pan-American airport here.

It is thought the name of the lake sent by the radio operator aboard the Lindbergh plane is an abbreviation for Lake de Chinchab, in the Province of Quintana Roo.

By the Associated Press.
BELIZE, British Honduras, Oct. 7.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, flying yesterday over the once broad empire of the ancient Maya Indians on the Yucatan Peninsula, discovered indications of a large ruined city, hitherto unknown to science.

The ruins were located in an area in which no human habitation was seen, where there was no open water, and where for many miles on any side were to be found only impenetrable jungles populated by beasts, boa constrictors and poisonous insects.

Radio messages received here from Lindbergh's plane gave only meager details of the city, but indicated that since the plane was far from its starting place it was necessary to hurry on.

Later the party saw the first Yucatan settlements, primitive villages of a meager, primitive Indian race. As the giant plane circled above them the natives fled in all directions, seeking cover from the strange bird.

Unknown to White Man.

The territory in which the supposedly new city was discovered is in what is known as Northern Potosi, a district which, it is thought, no white man had ever seen. Lindbergh completed a preliminary survey.

Upon leaving here yesterday morning Lindbergh flew up the Belize River on a general course to Cayo and Yaxha, and then directly north to Tikal, ancient city of the Mayas whose temples reach a greater height than any heretofore discovered. The plane covered in one hour and three-quarters a distance which land parties need seven days to travel.

The party left Tikal at noon. Fifteen minutes later it picked out the snow white temple at Uaxactun. Dr. Oliver Ricketson, a scientist of the Carnegie Institute who is accompanying Lindbergh, spent five years excavating there. He estimates one of the temples to date from the time of Christ or earlier.

To Unexplored Area.

From Uaxactun the plane headed north to an unexplored area, and then turned directly toward Merida, Yucatan metropolis, where it landed just before 4 o'clock. Weather permitting, the party plans to leave Merida today and fly back toward Belize, on a course plotted diagonally across the divisions of Yucatan and Quintana Roo, covering the second major unexplored Maya area.

The giant Sikorsky plane was stripped of all but its bare necessities for yesterday's trip. Mrs. Lindbergh, who sat beside her husband in the cockpit, served as a member of the crew and had her regular duties to perform. Dr. A. V. Kidder, head of the archaeological department of Carnegie Institute, also was in the party.

The purpose of the flight was explained as to determine the effectiveness of studying the ancient cities from the air and of locating others that may exist in the jungles of Northern Guatemala, British Honduras, Yucatan, Cam'che and Quintana Roo. Once located and mapped, land parties can be sent for a more thorough exploration. The flights are being made under the auspices of the Carnegie Institute and the Pan-American Airways.

Lindbergh discovered another Maya city during his good will flight over Central America about a year ago.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 7.—Following several months' illness, William H. Sweet Jr., 33 years old, killed himself here today by diving head first through a window in the seventh story of the Palace Clothing Co. Building here.

Sweet was dead when picked up. Several persons were missed narrowly by the falling body. Before taking his life Sweet entered the store with his wife. After paying a bill he told Mrs. Sweet to wait for him, took an elevator to the seventh floor and rushed to the window. Several minutes later the widow, still in the store, was informed of the tragedy.

John Coolidge Bark at Work.

His bride remained at the home of her parents Gov. and Mrs. John H. Trumbull, at Plainville where the two spent last night on their return from their honeymoon.

CITY GREETER DEAD

CURTIS L. CHITTENDEN
FOUND DEAD IN HOTEL

Chamber of Commerce Greeter Apparently Succumbed to Heart Attack.

Curtis Lee Chittenden, frequently chairman of Chamber of Commerce reception committees welcoming distinguished guests to St. Louis, was found dead yesterday afternoon in his room at the Coronado Hotel, apparently from a heart attack. He was 79 years old. The body will be sent to Greenville, Ill., his former home. Funeral arrangements will be made today after arrival of a daughter, Mrs. Lewis Skinner Hunt of Chicago, and a son, Robert, of Akron, O.

During the last 11 years, few Chamber of Commerce reception committees have not included Mr. Chittenden. He was Commodore of the Century Boat Club, a member of the Elks' Club and one of the oldest members of the Rotary Club in which he was active.

After completing his schooling, he became a drug salesman for Port Wayne, Ind., companies, coming to St. Louis in 1899 and opening a drug store on Market street. After several years he returned to the work of salesman and recently had been sales manager for a St. Louis dealer in sponges.

GIRL DISENTANGLES HERSELF FROM PARACHUTE DURING FALL Drops 1500 Feet Before It Opens and She Wins Contest at New York.

By the Associated Press.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Oct. 7.—Plunging head first toward the ground with a parachute whose lines had become snarled, Arveta Rogner, 17-year-old Hempstead high school girl succeeded yesterday in disentangling them, after a dive of 1500 feet.

The girl entered in a parachute jumping contest, jumped from a plane at a height of 2000 feet as she did so, her left foot became tangled in the lines and the parachute failed to open fully.

She pulled the lines on the side of the parachute which had opened until she equalized the pressure on both sides. Then she was able to jerk her foot loose. The parachute opened fully and she floated to earth, coming closer to the target than either of two other girls entered in the contest.

Reuben Wagner and Steve Lacey Cross Line at Portland, Me.

By the Associated Press.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 7.—Reuben Wagner, Omaha, in a Boeing, and Steve Lacey in a Cessna, were the first of the entries in the 1929 air tour to cross the finish line here shortly before noon, after a flight from Montreal today.

Later Capt. William N. Lancaster and May Halzlip reported that they had been forced down by lack of gasoline. Lancaster was at Auburn, 30 miles from here, while Miss Halzlip said she was about the same distance north of Portland, Ok., was forced to return to the air field in Montreal after taking off.

THE MAGIC BRUNSWICK TEST FOR TONE
Enables You To Compare Actual Studio Broadcasting with Radio Reception ...

WHEN you listen for the first time to a program received through the NEW Brunswick Radio, you realize that there is an almost magical difference, and that that difference can best be termed "Studio Quality" Radio Reception.

For neither the Radio, the Station nor the miles of intervening air seem to exist. You are magically transported to the very studio in which the artists are performing.

These are strong claims. But every Brunswick dealer can substantiate them right in his own store.

He will demonstrate the Brunswick Radio to you as all other sets are demonstrated, but also will demonstrate it to you as no other set can be demonstrated.

He will re-create the most dramatic and convincing Test for Radio "Tone" and "Reception" ever conceived, reproducing for you a Radio Program broadcast May 4th last, at 12:11 midnight, in the Studio of Station WABC, New York.

You will hear this program just as though you had been in the Studio at the time it was broadcast.

And, at the same time, you will hear the same identical program, just as it was picked-up by and came through a stock model of the NEW Brunswick Radio.

And so, for the first time, you can compare the pre-microphone studio performance of great artists with the work of these same artists as it sounds when received by the NEW Brunswick Radio.

Tonight at 10:00 o'clock over KMOX Brunswick Brevities goes on the air.

The featured artists will be LOUIS KATZMAN AND HIS ORCHESTRA, who will entertain with popular hits from "The Little Show" and "Hollywood Revue." If you go in for "St. Louis Blues," you will also hear this old favorite synopsized in a way you simply can't resist!

Al Smith Tells Byrd Expedition Of "Big Time Last Fall" in Radio Program Broadcast 10,000 Miles

out Lunch in Order to Hear Talks and Music From New York.

Copyright, 1929, by the Post-Dispatch and New York Times.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—A small group of men and women, gathered in the Times Club Room, chatted by radio Saturday night with Commander Richard E. Byrd and his expedition in Little America, 10,000 miles away.

Former Gov. Smith was there.
Other speakers were Adolph S.
Ochs, publisher of the New York Times; Arthur Hays Sulzberger;
Floyd Gibbons, war correspondent;
Harry Guggenheim of the Guggenheim Foundation for the Promotion of Aeronautics; J. R. Knowland, publisher of the Oakland (Cal.) Tribune, and Eddie Cantor.

They told the little group of men huddled in their shelter on the ice barrier what was going on in the world they had left behind. News of aviation, gossip about aviator friends of the flyers with Commander Byrd, the chit-chat of Broadway and greetings from friends at home were broadcast.
The speeches were interspersed with music.

Dinner hurried in Antarctic.
Before the broadcast started at 11 p. m., New York time (5 p. m. at the barrier), word was received that the expedition had dined early so that the clatter of dishes might not mar the reception.

The message follows:

"For nearly a year we have been completely cut off from civilization except for radio. For half a year longer it will be our only touch with the world. It would perhaps be difficult for you to visualize what it means to us to hear the voices of our friends on the other side of the world, 10,000 miles away, and so we are more grateful to you than you can realize for your friendly talks to us and for inviting some of our other friends to join you. It may interest you to know that though our springtime has come, it was 55 below zero last night, and for the month of September our average temperature was, so far as we know, 10 degrees colder than any temperature ever recorded for September in the history of the world.

"This month has so far broke the world's record. We find that the average temperature for this part of the south polar region runs 20 degrees colder than the same latitude in the north polar regions.
"It is fascinating to be able to study a continent in the clutches of an ice age. We are living, in effect, in another world whose purity and cold beauty is equalled only by its utter isolation and loneliness.

"I have often wondered how the Eskimos would like living at Little America. In the Arctic he has much life about him, polar bear, muskrat, reindeer, hare, fox, wolf, etc. Here there is no life except that which sojourns in the summer on the water's edge. The snow melts off the lowland in the summer for the Eskimo. Here at Little America he would never lay his eyes on that. He would find it much colder and he could see his breath freeze at 70 below zero, and he would have to protect himself from falling down bottomless crevasses.

"Instead of building igloos, the Eskimo and his dog would live under the snow like moles under the ground. It would take a whole book to deal with it, so I'll ring off.
"My very best wishes to you, in which greeting all other inhabitants of Little America join.

"DICK BYRD."

Reviews Aviation's Progress.

Ochs opened the program with a message of greeting to Commander Byrd, Russell Owen, the Times staff correspondent with the party, and other members of the expedition.

Guggenheim gave a resume of recent accomplishments in aviation, including an account of the successful demonstration of blind flying in which Lieut. James Doolittle of the Army Air Corps took off, flew a triangular course and landed, with nothing in view but his illuminated instruments.

Ochs introduced former Gov.
Smith.

"Commander Byrd, it is now our great privilege to present to you a very dear personal friend and one of the most popular men in the United States," he said. "Fifteen million people voted for him for President. Personally, I think they missed a fine opportunity to get a man, qualified for the job, and this is no reflection on the present incumbent."

Smith mentioned an occasion on which he and Commander Byrd addressed a Boy Scout meeting at Bear Mountain a few years ago.

"It was 96 in the shade," he continued. "If my recollection serves me right, we had everything but the ice. I've been given to understand that you have plenty of that down there. And I hope you have everything that goes with it.

"Well, I had a big time last fall.
If I had traveled in a straight line as many miles as I traveled around this country, I'd probably be down there with you. I struck some hot places, too; considerably hotter than where you are.

"I had a good time in Virginia.
Gov. Harry Byrd of Virginia, the explorer's brother, met me at the station with a delegation. The scene would be hard to describe.
It looked like the Dempsey-Firpo fight, and I came away yelping a brown derby.

"Speaking about a reception,
when you come back to New York, Grover Whalen will be on hand with the brightest pair of tan spats you ever saw, the highest silk hat and all the rest of the trimmings.

You'll get a welcome throughout the length and breadth of this land but nothing will resemble what will come to you from the Sidewalks of New York!"

Cantor spoke several lines from his new show.

"I don't know whether to say good morning or good evening," said Cantor, "or if its September or October where you are."

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, Oct. 6.—One of the latest special broadcast programs to be enjoyed by the entire population of Little America—for 10 men will soon be on the southern trail laying bases to the Queen Maud Mountains, where geological work will be done
this summer—was the program sent today by the New York Times.

Many of our special programs this year have been unusually good and have helped to break the monotony of our winter. What they mean to me can hardly be imagined by people at home. And one of the best of them was the first program arranged by the Times.

Such talks and singing are of the essence of home. They make us realize that somewhere a long way off is a place to which eventually there will be a return. When a little distortion in the radio waves results in a lost note or word everyone is so aggravated that the real appreciation of the men is easily apparent.

"These Saturday broadcasts are so important to the men of Commander Byrd's expedition that the dinner hours are regulated so they will not interfere. Ordinarily nowadays, there is a lunch at noon and dinner at 5 o'clock, but when the broadcasting begins about 4 o'clock dinner is postponed until 5 o'clock.

As this program started at 5 o'clock there was no lunch served and dinner was put ahead to 5 o'clock, so that all the clatter of plates and washing would be over by the time it began. There was not much to do outside today, either, for it was about 40 below and a strong wind blowing, a combination which makes it difficult to stay outdoors long.

Spring seems to have gone into a decline, much to everyone's disappointment, as it should begin to warm up now. However, it cannot be much longer delayed, and 10 to 20 below zero will feel warm after having the coldest September recorded.

KANSAS CITY MILK STRIKE

Producers Seek Price Increase of Six Cents.

By the Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 7.— Kansas City's milk strike began today but to what extent the supply was affected was not known this morning. The 1200 producers who joined the strike said thousands of homes would be without their morning cream, while Health Department officials said an ample emergency supply had been obtained.

Only users of pasteurized milk are affected, as the strike is aimed at pasteurization plants rather than the consumer. The producers are seeking a year-round price of 23 cents a gallon, an increase of 6 cents over the present price.

BORGER, TEX., PEACEFUL WITH MILITIA IN CHARGE
Guardians to Remain All Winter. If Officials Do Not Resign Jobs.

BORGER, Tex., Oct. 7.—Borger's transition from an oil town of 10,000 with a murder on an average of every six weeks into a peaceful community virtually has been accomplished by National Guardsmen without mishap. Only two shots, both accidental, have been fired since martial law was declared a week ago. Khaki-clad patrolmen direct traffic without the ordinary back talk from motorists. Drinkers stay at home. The women barbers have discarded their pajamas.

The town seems to be in a cold, peaceful "dry" winter. Since District Attorney John A. Holmes was assassinated Sept. 15, city and county officers have been deposed with soldiers taking their places. Numerous bootleggers and women have obeyed orders to "leave town by sundown."

Saturday night, ordinarily the night on which oil field workers came to town for their fun, has become the quietest night of the week. The Police Court docket yesterday showed only two arrests for intoxication.

Borger knows what the future will bring if Mayor Glenn A. Pace, Sheriff Joe Ownbey, Police Chief J. W. Crabtree and other city and county officers resign. Brigadier General Jacob F. Wolters, in command of the town, has announced that winter uniforms have been ordered for the enlisted men of whom there are 33. It generally was understood that, unless the resignations are offered by Thursday, the guardsmen will prepare for winter duty.

NEW JURY SYSTEM TO BE SCRUTINIZED BY THREE JUDGES

Committee Chosen to Report on Feasibility and Legality at Circuit Court Meeting.

Plans to improve and simplify the method of summoning and assigning jurors to service in the Circuit courts were discussed at length today by the Circuit Judges at their general term meeting. A committee of three judges was appointed to report on the feasibility and legality of the contemplated changes.

The general scheme under consideration is to summon all prospective jurors to one courtroom, where one judge will pass on all applications for excuses from service and assign the jurors to the various other courtrooms as needed.

The committee—consisting of Judges Calhoun, Falkenhainer and Pearcey—will report on legal phases of the proposed change, with recommendations as to whether the system should apply to the criminal as well as the civil divisions; whether the responsibility of examining jurors should be rotated among the judges from week to week, and whether the jurors should be summoned for the first day of the week they are to serve or in advance of that date.

At present, jurors are summoned to the individual courts and each judge has the responsibility of passing on pleas to be excused from service and of deciding in advance how many jurors will be needed in his court.

The proposed system would free the individual judges from the pleas of politicians and other persons of influence who might desire to get friends excused from service, and would also enable the courts to function with a minimum number of jurors.

Complaints have been made that some judges follow a practice of summoning many more jurors than they need in order to filter out politicians and others by applying with their requests for favors in excusing jurors.

It also was pointed out that if jurors are distributed from one courtroom it would be impossible for lawyers and litigants to know in advance the names of the men who would serve in any particular courtroom.

Records in the office of Sheriff Strodtman, who is responsible for obtaining jurors on the requisitions of judges, indicate that the judges in civil divisions order on an average of about 75 jurors each week and the judges in criminal divisions an average of about 150 jurors.

During a typical week in June, judges ordered 1020 jurors, 749 were served with summonses and 443, more than half of the number served, were excused for various reasons. Of 402 men summoned to seven civil courts where jury cases

WOOL AND MOHAIR CO-OPERATIVE FORMED

15 Representatives of Industry to Prepare By-Laws of $500,000 Corporation.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Oct. 7. — With the naming of a committee of 15 members, tentative plans for the formation of a national wool and mohair marketing agency were unanimously adopted by 32 co-operative representatives at the close of their two-day session Saturday.

The organization committee of 15 is composed of men who represent the wool and mohair industry throughout the United States. It includes: L. S. Palmer, Columbus, O., chairman; Byron M. Wilson, Kinley, Wyo., vice chairman; F. H. Wagar, Syracuse, N. Y.; J. H. Lemmon, Morristown, S. D.; and A. B. Sawyer, Lexington, Ky.

This committee was instructed to begin work immediately in the preparation of the articles of incorporation and bylaws for the national wool and mohair selling agency.

The plan calls for the formation of a central agency with a capital stock of $500,000 to be used for operation purposes.

NO TRACE OF ALASKAN FLYER

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Oct. 7. — No trace has been found of Pilot Merrill of the Anchorage Air Transport Service who has not been heard from since flying over the dredge camp route early last week.

Snow is already falling in the isolated district where Merrill is believed to have had a mishap. Miners and trapper are preparing to search for the flyer with dog teams but are being held up pending the freezing of streams. The flyer had a plentiful supply of provisions, a shotgun and an ax with him on his flight. Merrill, 36 years old, was born at Des Moines, Ia.

Chicago Plane Trying Again, CHICAGO, Oct. 7. — With the half-way mark only two days away, the Chicago-We Will continued to cruise in lazy circles above Sky Harbor Airport today in its fourth attempt to surpass the 421-hour refueling endurance record of the St. Louis Robin. At 8:52 a. m., the Chicago-We Will passed the 168th hour, exactly seven days. The flight promoters and field attaches still declined to disclose who the two pilots were.

Germes of decay are glued to teeth: do this

Remove FILM daily. Ordinary brushing methods fail. Employ this special way dentists urge TOOTH DECAY is caused by germs. Pyorrhea usually results from germs and tartar. Virtually every common disease of teeth and gums is caused by germ infection. Dentists know how true this is. Germs are imprisoned in a dingy, glue-like coating on the teeth called film. There they breed by millions in contact with the teeth and tissues.

Germ-laden film covers every tiny crevice of the enamel.

Film clings so stubbornly ordinary ways are not successful in removing it. You must use the special formula called Pepsodent. Then what a change! The instant it touches your teeth you will notice how utterly different it is by the way it feels.

Film vanishes. Teeth become gleaming white. Yet Pepsodent acts gently. No pumice, harmful grit or crude abrasive—but a soft, creamy paste that is prescribed for the softest teeth and tenderest gums.

Do not delay. Write for free 10-day supply to The Pepsodent Co., 1104 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago.

ELEVEN KILLED IN PLANE MISHAPS, FIVE IN STUNTING

Pilot and Two Passengers Die in Crash at Moberly, Mo., When Ship Goes Into Tail Spin.

4 LOSE LIVES DUE TO BROKEN WING

Parachute Jumper Killed in Leap in Pennsylvania When Device Fails to Open.

By the Associated Press.
MOBERLY, Mo., Oct. 7.—Bryan Hefflin, 35, ears old, pilot of an airplane in which two other persons were killed instantly late yesterday, died last night of his injuries.

Dr. C. H. Dixon, coroner, today began an inquest into the deaths of the two passengers, Miss Del-dee Hardin and Paul Roland. The crash occurred while Hefflin was stunting near the air field. Motor trouble is thought to have prevented Hefflin from getting the plane out of a tailspin.

Both Miss Hardin and Roland had been up before and it was said that both had planned to take flying lessons from Hefflin.

The crash followed a series of stunts and passenger flights by Hefflin and W. B. Keeble, Washington University student of St. Louis, who had completed flying for the day and had returned to town when the accident occurred. Keeble and Hefflin had advertised an air circus and passenger flights for Sunday.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Bryan Hefflin, who suffered fatal injuries in an airplane crash at Moberly, Mo., yesterday, had made application for a transport pilot's license Aug. 1 but the application had not been acted upon.

Four Killed When Wing Buckles on Texan's Plane.

By the Associated Press.
LEONA, Tex., Oct. 7.—Lieut. Reginald M. (Jack) Brooks, Dallas contractor, and three passengers were killed yesterday afternoon when Brooks' airplane crashed on the Nash farm, near here, after a wing buckled.

The other dead: Leon Lynch and Allen Powell, Centerville youths, and Marvin Botter of Teague.

The wing gave way at an altitude of 1500 feet, and the ship shot to earth with the disabled wing folded back over the cockpit. The nose of the ship was buried deep in the earth.

At Love Field, Dallas, it was said Brooks was considered one of the best pilots there. He received his transport pilot's license in 1928 and had flown nearly 5000 hours.

He took off from Love Field yesterday morning for Leona on a business trip in connection with work the firm of which he was vice president, was doing near Centerville.

Pennsylvania Flyer Also Killed While Stunting.

By the Associated Press.
JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Oct. 7.—Frank Datin, Pittsburgh, air mail pilot between Pittsburgh and Cleveland, was injured fatally in the crash of a small plane he was stunting with in sight of Keystone Airport at Edensburg yesterday.

Datin was taking a part in an air circus before a crowd of 5000 and had performed several stunts successfully. Evidently misjudging his altitude, he went into a barrel-roll only a few hundred feet from the ground. The plane went into a tail spin and landed in a swamp, half a mile from the airport. He died in Mercy Hospital.

Parachute Jumper Killed When Device Fails.

By the Associated Press.
ALTOONA, Pa., Oct. 7.—Baker Diehl, 23 years old, of Dunconville, yesterday was killed at the Cross Keys Airport when he struck the ground as his parachute failed to open after a jump from an airplane at an altitude of 2000 feet, in the presence of 1000 persons.

Diehl's regular summer schedule of parachute exhibitions ended last week. He went up yesterday to thrill the large crowd gathered at the airport because of the fine weather.

Woman Killed When She Steps in to Propeller.

By the Associated Press.
RED WING, Minn., Oct. 7.—Mrs. Ray Ahrens, 25 years old, of Red Wing, was injured fatally, and Max Conrad, 27, of Winona, Minn., suffered a fractured skull and is in a serious condition, as the result of stepping into the whirling blades of an airplane propeller at Frontenac, 10 miles south of here, yesterday.

American Flyer in World War Killed in Wisconsin.

By the Associated Press.
MARSHFIELD, Wis., Oct. 7.—Max Berghammer, 49 years old, pioneer in Wisconsin commercial aviation, was killed yesterday when his plane crashed from a height of 1000 feet. He flew with the American forces in France during the World War.

CULT PRIESTESS IS FOUND BURIED WITH SEVEN DOGS

Body of Los Angeles Girl Who Died in January 1925 Kept on Ice for More Than a Year.

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 7.—Documents of a strange religious cult were examined by the police here today in an effort to determine whether the life of Willa Rhoads, 35-year-old "high priestess" of the organization, whose body was found in a specially made casket beneath the floor of her foster-parents' home here, was sacrificed as a part of a ritual of the organization.

The foster-parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Rhoads, are held as material witnesses. Officers unearthed the casket containing the girl's body and another in which were the bodies of seven dogs.

Mrs. Rhoads admitted that the girl died more than four years ago, and that her body had been kept for more than a year in the hope she would be resurrected through the power of the cult. For more than a year after Miss Rhoads' death on Jan. 1, 1925, the body had been preserved in ice, Mrs. Rhoads said.

Police Theory of Death.
Although a preliminary examination failed to indicate the girl had met a violent death, Police Captain E. W. Thompson suggested the theory that the girl may have been put to death by the members of the cult in a sacrificial rite.

Police suspicion was directed to the Rhoads home after two other members of the cult, Mrs. Otis Blackburn, the "high priestess," and her daughter, Mrs. Ruth Angelina Wieland Rizio, had been held on charges of embezzling about $50,000 from persons who had contributed to the organization, which bore the name of "The Divine Order of the Royal Arm of the Great Seal."

The dogs had been pets of the dead girl and, according to the story told by Mrs. Rhoads, represented the seven tones of Gabriel's trumpet, which the cultists expected to proclaim the resurrection morn.

The investigation was started at the request of Clifford R. Dabney, wealthy Venice, Cal., oil operator, who charged that after becoming a member of the cult he advanced approximately $40,000 to Mrs. Blackburn pending the completion of a book she was writing, to be known as "The Sixth Seal," and upon which the colony based its beliefs.

Mrs. Blackburn's arrest on an embezzlement charge disclosed activities of the cult, which led to the discovery of the girl's body.

Her husband standing silently by Mrs. Rhoads said that her adopted daughter had died of diphtheria. Believing she would be resurrected, she placed the body in a copper-lined casket made by Rhoads and packed it in ice for more than a year and transported it from one dwelling to another as the family changed residence. Mrs. Rhoads told officers the burial finally took place Feb. 10, 1926.

Body Well Preserved.
Due to the airtight construction of the casket, the girl's body was in a fair state of preservation. Dr. H. F. Wagner, county autopsy surgeon, said he was unable to ascertain the cause of death. He ordered a chemical examination.

No criminal charges have been filed against Mr. and Mrs. Rhoads or other members of the cult in connection with the girl's death. The parents are subject to prosecution on a charge of failing to report a death, and also of making a private burial, police say.

The cult has been in existence almost six years, according to its founder, Mrs. Blackburn. She asserted there were no mysterious ceremonies and said the object of the organization was "for the study of resurrection."

TWO CADDIES FINED AFTER FIGHT AT COUNTRY CLUB

Two caddies were fined today for trespassing as the result of a scuffle at the North Shore Country Club, 11050 Riverview drive, yesterday, in which William Bruckner, manager of the club, suffered a cut on the abdomen. After assessing fines, Police Judge Beck paroled the boys on their promise of good behavior.

George Prister, 17 years old, 3354 Bbase avenue, was fined $25 for trespassing and $100 for peace disturbance, when Bruckner testified he was cut by an instrument in Prister's hand. Frank Burkett, 18, 7208 North Broadway, was fined $25 for trespassing.

Bruckner told the judge the two youths were causing a disturbance among other caddies at the club, and refused to leave on his order.

RELIEF NEEDED IN FLORIDA

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Oct. 7.—Approximately 1,400 families in South Florida are in need of relief and many must be rehabilitated as the result of the recent storm, local Red Cross headquarters have been advised by Robert E. Bondy, national disaster chairman of the American Red Cross. The local chapter was advised that no general appeal for funds will be made. The principal need, the local chapter was informed, is in Broward, Dade and Monroe counties, although there also is some need for relief in North Florida and South Georgia sections.

ATHLETICS RULE 7 TO 3 FAVORITES TO BEAT CUBS IN WORLD SERIES

MCCARTHY PICKS ROOT TO FACE PHILADELIANS IN FIRST GAME

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—Manager Joe McCarthy of the Cubs today said he planned to send Charlie Root, his star right-hander, against the Athletics in the first game of the world series tomorrow, reserving Percy "Pat" Malone for the second game Wednesday.

Root, leading pitcher of the National League this season, was selected by McCarthy because of his greater steadiness. He is a fast-ball pitcher and a very fast workman. Root won 19 games and lost six this year.

Baseball's "biggest show on earth" comes to town tomorrow, featuring the highly trained white elephants of the Philadelphia Athletics and the battling Bruins of Joe McCarthy in the main event of the game's colorful carnival.

Stripped of the billboard phrases, it's the Philadelphia Athletics against the Chicago Cubs for the world's championship, the honors that go with it and perhaps the richest money reward for the participants in series history.

It will be another million-dollar party, the first since 1926, if the battle between the American and National League champions goes as far as the games, at the rate of a single over $200,000 per game and a "sell-out" already assured, might top the previous record "gate" of $1,207,564, set by the Yankees and Cardinals in 1926.

A struggle, the limit of seven games certainly would establish a new money record.

Fully 50,000 fans, a record for any series game ever played outside of New York, are expected to jam Wrigley Field to the limits of its bleacher extensions tomorrow for the battle that renews the baseball rivalry between Philadelphia and Chicago of 19 years ago. It marks the re-entry of Connie Mack's Athletics into the series for the first time in 15 years and the Cubs after a lapse of 17 years.

Attacker Are Favorites.

Nineteen years ago the proud Cubs of Frank Chance's era were heavy favorites, only to be trimmed in a five-game series.

Tomorrow the modern A's, still directed by the veteran Mack, will go into the fray favored to win in the betting at 7 to 5 as well as by most experts, in spite of the favoring influences of home grounds and a home-town crowd for the clouting Cubs. History may repeat itself with another upset of the "dope" for the battling Bruins are unmistakably rarin' to go and die for the old National League, if necessary.

The battery for the Athletics was expected to be Barnshaw and Cochrane.

Heavy Hitters on Clubs.

Grove is slated to twirl the second game opposed by Malone, but Connie Mack may cross the experts and nominate old Jack Quinn, right-handed spitballer.

Outside of the pitching, the series promised to be a spectacular contest between the heavy hitting Cub array, featuring Hornsby, Wilson, Stephenson and Cuyler, and the strong Mack cast, boasting a superior battery defense, plus an attack starring Al Simmons and Jimmy Fox.

It will be one of the high spots of the series to see whether the great Hornsby and the slugger, Hack Wilson do more damage with their war clubs than Simmons and Fox, the young Mack siege guns.

This quartet contributed a grand total of 146 home runs during the regular season. They may buy a few world series records, if they get the range, even though the well-known Mr. Ruth has left considerable for them to shoot at.

ALTON SLACKS CAPTURE DOUBLE BILL, 17-11, 4-1

The Alton Slacks, champions of the Alton Municipal League, took both ends of a double-header from the East St. Louis Slacks, which won the Muny League title for the fourth time in East St. Louis on Field No. 1 at Jones Park in East St. Louis yesterday. Five thousand fans saw Alton win the first, 17 to 11, and the second, 4 to 1, the latter being limited to seven innings.

Nine runs in the ninth gave Alton the first game, which saw Ray Egan and Kohlberg pitching for Alton and Currier, Walsh and Hennick hurling for East St. Louis. Kohlberg outpitched Currier in the second game.

Mack and McCarthy Assert Teams Are Ready for Opening Battle of Series

By Joe McCarthy, Manager Chicago Cubs.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—The concluding week of the National League season found our club coming through in just the proper shape to begin the championship tussle with the Athletics. Every pitcher, who figures to be given some playing time in the series, had just the right amount of work against the Reds.

Those Cub pitchers, who may, or may not have needed rest, suddenly bobbed up and handled themselves in good style. The hitting, for the most part, continued at about the same clip the boys have shown all season. The principal incident of the final week of the race was the return of Charlie Grimm to first base. While we knew that he had been given the proper attention and had taken excellent care of the broken hand, the general public may have been skeptical about Charlie's return to form. They do not have to be. Grimm was as active as ever. The Cubs are in no sense a green team. There are no new players to face the Athletics, and I am certain that every one of them will be able to give a good account of himself.

Zack Taylor, whose thumb was injured two weeks ago, is also ready for the series. With the exception of "Gaby" Hartnett, who has been unable to catch all season, the entire strength of the team is ready to face the Athletics, and I am certain that every one of them will be able to give a good account of himself.

They go into the series in shape to win and they will win. To us the Athletics are just another ball club that we did not happen to encounter until the second week in October. The Cubs are in no sense a green team. There is no reason why they should become affected with stage fright. There are too many old hands, such as Hornsby and Grimm around for that.

It is my opinion that the Cub fans will see their club playing the same kind of baseball in the world series that they have played in the regular season. That kind of baseball was good enough to win a pennant.

By Connie Mack, Manager of the Athletics.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7.—After winning two straight games from the Yankees to finish the season, we feel much encouraged to approach the series with the Cubs for the baseball championship of America. The American League pennant winners will enter the battle with the Cubs in proper shape. There is not a man who is not fit to make the greatest fight in his career to win honors.

I was very much gratified by the work of my players in the last two games of the season. Off days and rain kept us idle after last Sunday in Boston until our two games at the Yankee Stadium.

There is no doubt that I felt badly because of weather conditions that kept us from playing two games with Washington in Philadelphia.

We needed those games badly from the standpoint that I wanted my players to get on razor edge for the Cubs. They had been idle so long that I commenced to worry. I never had any misgivings about the skill and the grit of my team, but I wanted my players in the best of form.

The two games won by the Athletics in New York certainly pleased me. I used three pitchers for three times each in each game. The boys I assigned to this one-day trick were Grove, Barnshaw, Quinn, Shore, Walberg and Rommel.

I am greatly pleased that all of these fingers made a good showing and proved beyond any doubt that they are ready to show their best against the Cubs.

I feel that our team is on edge to whip any team that confronts them. All our men are on edge and they will show it. They will win. I have the greatest respect for the Cubs and Joe McCarthy, yet I think that my young ball players will come across and win the series.

I shall be more than surprised if it isn't good enough to win a world championship.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7.—The regular season closed yesterday and I am practically exhausted from loafing. It has taken from early April right down to Oct. 6 to play 156 games, at least 54 of which were unnecessary.

Warner Cites Many Reasons For Failure of Grid Teams With Fine Early Prospects

By Glenn S. Warner, Member All-America Football Board.

PALO ALTO, Cal., Oct. 7.—"You can't tell by the looks of a team how far he can jump," and no one, not even the coach, can tell by the looks of a squad of football material how good a team is going to be developed from that material.

There are too many things that can happen on a squad to interfere with its success and very often the best of prospects indicating a great team go wrong. On the other hand it sometimes happens for various reasons that a team which is seemingly indifferent prospects and rather mediocre material, an unexpectedly strong team will be developed.

That is the main reason why some of the more experienced coaches are loath to predict that their prospects for turning out a great team are bright. They know from experience of their own and from having seen the seemingly bright prospects of other coaches come to grief that they cannot tell with any degree of certainty just what kind of a team they will be able to develop.

A few years ago, Brown University was represented on the gridiron by an unusually good team at a time when no one expected any great things. The record was outstanding. The next year the following of the team had every reason to expect an even better record because practically all the members of the previous season's great team were on hand and were handled by the same coach, and yet the team made a mediocre showing and proved a great disappointment.

Take Case of Lafayette.

Another similar instance can be mentioned in the case of Lafayette in recent years. With practically an entire year's successful team of the year before returning it was natural to expect even better results, but instead of showing an improvement over their previous season's showing a miserable record was made.

I might also mention my own experience since I came to Stanford. In the five years I have been here the two teams which each suffered a defeat in conference games started out with better prospects than the three teams which came through the conference schedule with no defeats.

Some of the reasons for these upsets of the hopes are as follows: A team composed mostly of veterans playing their third year very often does not come up to expectations because its members, having reached their goal, by having the team in previous years have come to expect themselves and have lost their enthusiasm. The incentive which spurred them on while they were trying to land places on the varsity is gone and along with it their ambition and desire to improve. They are satisfied and when players get in that mood they quickly go back to efficiency instead of going forward.

Game Demands Enthusiasm.

Football is one game which demands enthusiasm, great effort, and ambition to improve, and without those qualities the most experienced and clever player in the world cannot cope with players who, although less experienced and skillful have them. This is the main reason why professional football will always be a wide show to the college games—the college boys have "it" and the pros have not.

Clicks on a team may ruin its prospects as will little personal dislikes for each other among team members. This can be called the morale of the team.

There is no other game, which requires so much team work and co-operation as football and unless every member of the team is pulling for and helping every other teammate there develop animosities and petty jealousies and lack of unified team spirit—which will ruin any team's prospects. Self-sacrifice and a one-for-all and an all-for-one spirit among the players who are all pulling together will go a long way toward developing a team into a winner when prospects do not look very good and there are no stars on the squad. A brotherly clasp on the back and a word of commendation for a good play by a teammate will work wonders whereas snarling criticism when a mistake is made will soon ruin a team's morale.

Reasons for Failures.

There are many other causes for disappointing records such as an unusual number of serious injuries which may disable some of the best players; epidemics of bad colds or other forms of sickness which sometimes lay up a whole team for part of a season and then there is the case of the captain who proves to be a poor leader and loses the confidence of his men.

Without citing further reasons why it is difficult to predict what kind of a team is likely to be developed from the material at hand, I think I have clearly shown that the coach whose team last year made a great record and who gets swelled up and goes about among the team's supporters and the newspaper boys and says "you haven't seen nothing yet" is just a fool who is breeding a lot of trouble for himself.

HOWLEY TO TALK BUSINESS WITH CLUB OWNERS AT WORLD SERIES

Dan Howley, for three years manager of the Browns, yesterday said good-bye to the fans of the city and he will, with characteristic never-quitting fashion, with a double victory over the Cleveland Indians. Last night Howley departed for Chicago, where he will witness the world series and, incidentally, talk business with several managers who have told him they were interested in his baseball future.

In the Browns' clubhouse before the Sunday games John Ogden, on behalf of the Browns players, presented Dan with a white gold watch as a token of the esteem in which the players regarded the man who, now, in their estimation, "Howley" was visibly affected by the gift and in replying said: "I hardly can find words to thank you. You have surprised me completely. I do want to say that, though I have been in all my years of baseball experience, I have had men under me of finer caliber than you men. From the start to finish there has been complete harmony among us, and, at any time, in any way, I can ever be of service to any of you, you have only to call on me."

Then after the double victory, Howley said he had no definite plans for the future. He did say he expected to talk business when he got to Chicago, but would give no indication of just what that business would be.

And his farewell to the fans was this: "Please tell the fans of St. Louis that I will always remember the fine treatment they have given me. So far as the city goes, it is the best place I have ever worked. Tell them I appreciate the treatment and will always have a warm spot in my heart for St. Louis and for the fans of the city."

Howley, after the world series, will go to Minneapolis for a short hunting trip and then will go to his home in East Weymouth, Mass., for a stay before going to Florida to spend the winter.

Always the "Dapper Dan," Howley, as he left the ball park for the last time as manager, waved to those about the gates and wished them good luck and drove back to his hotel.

SAYS FISHING IS ON INCREASE IN MISSOURI.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 7.—A hundred persons are fishing today where 30 years ago one fished, writes G. M. Kirby, chief of State Fisheries, in the October issue of the Missouri Game and Fish News, a magazine published by the State Game and Fish Department.

Giggers and shiners are the favorite catches of the fisherman, but instead of catching a supply of fish in the streams and lakes that will prevent the time between lures from becoming too long. Legislation of a conservative nature in the only means of adequately protecting the fish supply, he believes.

JACK COOMBS NOTES.

It is a relief to be out of the grind, but I am not interested with chronic optimism knows that the season was all over the early part of August.

It has been so long since there was a real baseball season, I keep thinking the world series is spring training.

BILLIKENS TO START PREPARATION FOR GAME AGAINST GEORGETOWN

NEW PLAYERS ON ST. LOUIS TEAM SHOWED WELL IN ELKINS CONTEST

By Glen McDonald
St. Louis University's football team will draw another tough opponent next Saturday, when the Billikens travel to Washington, D. C., to play Georgetown University. It will be the second game of the season for the locals. Every member of the squad is in good shape despite the season's hard opener with Davis-Elkins.

Georgetown was on the losing end in one of the country's biggest upsets last Saturday. The Washington team, led by football experts as one of the outstanding eleven in the East, dropped a 7-0 decision to Western Maryland. Assistant Coach John de Grossa of Georgetown scouted the Billikens and was impressed with what he saw.

Two Fine Ends.
Head Coach Lou Little of Georgetown has two star ends in Provençal and Brennan. Both are fast and clever on offense and defense. Mooney and Cordova are the leading Georgetown tackles. Both are tall and rangy and know how to use their hands. Mooney does the punting for the team and as he is rated among the best in the East in that department Captain Joe Lintzenich will have a real job on his hands. The Billiken captain however need only to keep up his 43-yard average of the Davis-Elkins game to make good Lintzenich's punts in Saturday's game were almost perfect. He placed one outside on the visitor's one-yard line; another on the 10-yard line and another on the 12-yard mark.

Driscoll and Linton are Georgetown's guards while Morris and Wynkoop, veteran centers, assure the Washington team of a star pivot man. Dubofsky and Katalinas are two capable but inexperienced linemen who will be seen a lot at either tackle or guard. Leary, formerly a halfback, is the team's quarterback. Hudak, Macceas and Schmidt are Georgetown's regular halfbacks. According to Little they know what it is all about on the offense and are wide awake on the defense. Buras, Borden and Boszk are also capable backs.

Light Workout Today.
Practice today will be light in character because of the natural soreness of the players after a strenuous contest. Tomorrow, however, some serious work will be attempted to get ready for the Georgetown game.

The Billikens will depart for Washington Thursday and have a brief workout in the capital next Friday. Coach Anderson will take a full squad with him and will give them all a chance to get in action.
Coach "Chile" Walsh returned from Washington this morning, where he scouted the Georgetown Western Maryland game. The Billiken freshmen will be given the Georgetown plays today and will probably use them in a scrimmage with the varsity Wednesday.

HOLLYWOOD IS VICTOR IN SECOND HALF OF COAST PENNANT RACE

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 7.—Baseball fans fought over again today the final games of one of the closest finishes in Pacific Coast League history while the San Francisco Mission Reds and Hollywood Stars mapped out their strategy for a championship play-off beginning here tomorrow.

Winners respectively of the first and second halves of the split season, the Reds and Stars will meet tomorrow in the opening contest of a seven-game series to determine the 1929 pennant. A $6000 million from the coffers of the league will be split on a 60-40 basis. The first three games will be played in San Francisco and the next three in Los Angeles. If a seventh contest is necessary its location will be decided later.

The Stars slid into the second half leadership by the margin of one game, despite two defeats yesterday. While the Stars were losing to Portland, 4-1 and 9-2, the runnerup Missions took two beatings from Seattle's Indians, 7-3 and 9-1.

Final standings (second half):

Club	Won	Lost	Pct.
Hollywood	61	42	.592
Mission Reds	60	43	.583
Los Angeles	57	46	.553
Portland	57	46	.553

1,485,000 CHICAGOANS PAID TO SEE CUBS THIS YEAR—A RECORD

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—Chicago baseball fans appreciated a National League championship team to the extent of 1,485,000 paid admissions during the regular campaign, a new major league record.
The mark fell somewhat short of the million and one-half attendance record President William L. Veeck hoped to set, but was more than 200,000 better than the previous standard set by the 1927 Cubs.

Pitching of Series Rivals Is Standoff; Macks Have Catching Edge, Says McGraw

Off Days May Give Athletic Leader a Chance to Use George Earnshaw in Three of the Contests.

By John J. McGraw, Manager, New York Giants.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The pitching problems of the Cubs and Athletics are so entirely different that it is next to impossible to point out any marked superiority on either side. In catching, however, it is entirely different with the Athletics owning a big edge. And superiority here often has a telling effect on a whole series.

To make the pitching question a little clearer. The big problem for Mack is to stop the heavy right-hand batters of the Cubs. Whether to attempt it with left-handers or take a chance on a right-hander like Earnshaw will make Mack scratch his head.

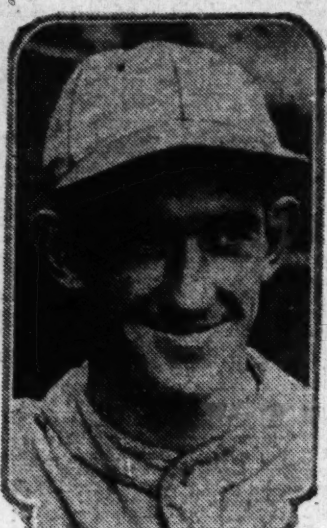

On the other hand, the Cubs have no left-handed ace and must depend largely upon right-handers to stop the mixed batting order of the American Leaguers.

Cochrane Has No Equal.
The big edge of the A's behind the bat is not one of experience and knowledge but of actual power and youthful snap. No catcher in either league is quite the equal of Mickey Cochrane. For that reason I selected him on my All-Star team, as did most every other baseball man. You couldn't get away from it, no matter how clever other backstops may seem to you.

Cochrane not only is an aggressive fighter, but he is one of the real sluggers of the game. Neither of the Cubs' catchers is within 57 points of him in hitting. Cochrane hit .325 for the year, but the genuineness of his record is indicated in his having caught in 131 of the 147 games played by the Athletics.

A catcher who can work that often is a real man. But for a fellow to catch day after day and still rank with the leading hitters is remarkable. In the old days, Rogers Bresnan was a catcher of that type and his steady work in the 1905 series against the Athletics was a most important factor. Cochrane is the type of catcher who does not pick his spots but can

Two Speed Ball Stars.
It would be easy to compare Lefty Grove with Pat Malone among the pitchers, despite the fact that one is a southpaw and the other a right-hander, because both are essentially fast-ball pitchers. Though many American Leaguers are expressing fears of using Grove against the Cubs, it would not surprise me if he and Malone hooked up in the first game. It would certainly give Mack an opportunity to feel out the situation.

While there is no question about Grove having terrific speed, many seem to forget that Malone has a fast ball that fairly smokes. My players, who have batted against both, tell me that Malone is every bit as fast as Grove.

In the meantime, don't forget that Earnshaw can put a lot of stuff on the ball with that big overhand move of his and that toward the end of the season he was the most successful of the Athletic pitchers. He has the advantage over Grove in that he is a right-hander, but he cannot pitch all the games. After the first fight is over a fresh problem confronts both Mack and McCarthy. That is where the finger flinger will show itself. No chess match ever offered a prettier problem.

All managers like to get in that first punch because winning of the opening game is undoubtedly an advantage in morale as well as in fact. A ball game won is a ball game won, don't forget that.

According to season's records, Earnshaw has won 23 games and Malone 22, the Athletics star lost eight and the Bruin ace nine contests. It is so even in fact, that a great right hander more evenly matched. In the next pair, Grove had won 20 to 15 for Lusa. Then there was Waiberg with a winning record of 18 and Root with 17, further evidence of how evenly the opposing groups are matched.

One name that appears to escape many fans and experts is that of Hal Carlson. He may turn out to be one of the stars of the series. In the later part of the season, he was a most dependable winner for McCarthy. He is thoroughly experienced and when right will stop any club.

There are certainly no advantages in the statistical records of the several pitchers when taken as groups. For that reason, it is, in my opinion, a very even proposition. It is so even in fact, that I regard the pitching as the pivotal factor in the whole series. The uncertainty of individuals performing according to expectations will probably decide the winner of the series.

Personally, I have the feeling that Mack's left handers will have a tough job trying to stop the right handers, Hornsby, Stephenson, Cuyler and Wilson. I say this from experience.

An interesting twist to the situation is the off day on Sunday in Philadelphia and also the one in traveling from Chicago. That may give Mack a chance to use Earnshaw in three games. Remember, though, it may also help the Cubs if the man they figure on comes through.

Advantages After Backfire.

Those supposed advantages often backfire as world series managers well know. Suppose, for instance, the man selected to appear three times should lose his first and also his second game. Then all plans would go awry and it would be a case of catch-as-catch can. That often happens. The rarest thing in baseball is for a carefully worked out plan to run according to schedule. I would not be a bit surprised if two smart old veterans like Nehf and Quinn cut quite a figure before the fight is over.

To get back to the catching. In Cy Perkins, the A's have another excellent man, but I doubt very much whether he will do any work unless Cochrane is knocked out by accident or illness. Mack knows the advantage of keeping Cochrane in there for his batting as well as his aggressive spirit.

The Cubs have two experienced and reliable catchers, but neither regarded as a heavy hitter. Gonzalez has batted .258 and Taylor .277. Both, though, have been in the game much longer than Cochrane or Perkins and their experience will help a lot. It was a big factor in the Cubs' pennant victory.

I have seen Gonzalez called on many times to help out a catching situation and I have never known him to fail. He is a finished workman with the heart of a lion. The same can be said of Taylor, who right now is the most dangerous batter in a pinch.

It is fair to assume that Cochrane will do all the catching for the Mackmen as he has done all season. Therefore we must base calculations on his work against that of Taylor and Gonzalez. The Athletics clearly have the advantage.

ITALIAN HORSE WINS FRENCH FEATURE RACE

PARIS, Oct. 7.—Ortello, Italian 3-year-old by the French stallion, Teddy, out of Hobebeck, won the Arc Triomphe stakes over a mile and one-half course at Long Champs yesterday. Kantar, owned by Lady Granard, was second, and the German 4-year-old, Oleander, third.

Ortello, quoted at 15 to 1 in a field of 13 won by half a length with the same distance separating a meeting at the Broadview Hotel in East St. Louis tonight. Lavern Miller, representative of the International Golf and Recreation Clubs, has called the meeting. He states incorporation papers will be drawn by the new directors and a name and site for the club chosen. Golfers of East St. Louis, Belleville and Collinsville are interested in the proposition.

BEARS START WORK FOR DRAKE GAME SATURDAY

By Henry L. Freund.

Drake University will offer the Washington U. Bears the first test of the season next Saturday night at Francis Field. The Bears showed conclusively Saturday that they possess a scoring power this year that has been lacking for the past several seasons. In the 34-7 victory over Illinois College, Washington's flashy backfield appeared to advantage and the defense did not disappoint the Bears' followers as the lone touchdown against the Hilltoppers was not due to a weakening of the Bear forward line but to a clever play of the visitors, a smart off-tackle run of 35 yards by Schuster, the Illinois star.

The Bears emerged from the contest in good shape. George Coover was the only Bear who suffered any ill effects, although Gus Butz, who played a bang-up game at center, was considerably shaken up. Coover suffered an ankle injury but it is not expected to keep him out of Saturday's game.

Rawdon Rounding Into Shape.
It appears that one of Saturday's starting backfield men will not open against Drake as Dick Rawdon, veteran halfback, will be in condition to play. His twisted knee ligaments are responding to treatment. Sauselle and Wald will probably split one halfback berth between them as Hornsby is a certain starter at full and Springer's excellent playing last Saturday assures him of the quarterback position.

Three things will be stressed in practice this week by Dr. Sharpe. The Bears fumbled frequently in Saturday's game and the backfield men will be given plenty of opportunity to become accustomed to handling the ball to prevent any unnecessary fumbling. A second stress will be laid on Drake plays. Line Coach Gale Bullman scouted the Drake-Oklahoma Aggies' game on Friday night which resulted in a Drake victory by an 18-6 score. Bullman was impressed with the cleverness of Lynn King, the Drake quarterback.

Plenty of Scrimmage.
The third emphasis will be placed on scrimmage in order that the reserves may receive additional experience. The Bear reserves will have to be in prime shape to stop the hard hitting Captain Barnes, King and Nesbitt of the Drake backfield.

Drake has played two games this season, both at night, so they will be well acquainted with playing under the floodlights. It will be Washington's first night game.

NOTRE DAME AND NAVY ELEVEN TO MEET, SATURDAY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—With two Saturdays of tuneup contests behind them, Eastern college football players will spend the next few days getting ready for some real competition next Saturday.

Thirteen contests of a more or less intersectional nature are on the program. There is the Notre Dame-Navy struggle at Baltimore with Knute Rockne's Ramblers hoping for a repetition of last year's victory. Michigan State battles Colgate at Hamilton, N. Y.; Nebraska meets Syracuse at Syracuse; St. Louis battles Georgetown at Washington and Albion clashes with Elmer Layden's Duquesne outfit.

Yale, which opened its season with an 89-0 triumph over Vermont, travels South for the first time to play Georgia at Atlanta. Two other Southern Conference teams swing into action against Eastern foes, Virginia Poly meets Pennsylvania at Philadelphia as well as the Sally.

and Virginia meeting Swarthmore at Charlottesville. Gil Doherty, Cornell eleven will be matched with Hampden-Sydney and Davidson travels to West Point to meet Army.

Three Ohio teams furnish the opposition to the East in the remaining intersectional combats. John Carroll of Cleveland, a strong eleven, meets Grove City at Cleveland; Carnegie Tech leaves its native Pittsburgh hamlet for a game against Western Reserve, and West Virginia Wesleyan goes to Cincinnati for a tussle with St. Xavier.

In the traditional rivalry clash are the West Virginia-Pittsburgh and New York University-Fordham clashes. Pitt, a formidable array which crushed Duke, 52-7 on Saturday, will be favored over a Mountaineer team beaten by Duke and Elkins and tied by Duquesne.

N. Y. U. will be the choice over Fordham. Washington and Jefferson and Bucknell meet at Lewisburg, O. These schools battled in a scoreless tie last year in the Princeton, hard pressed to down Amherst in its opening game, meets a weak Brown team. Harvard, victor over Bates by 43-0, will get more opposition from New Hampshire.

May Switch League Cities.
A reorganization of the Eastern Carolina and Piedmont leagues may switch cities of the former to the latter circuit. Judge Bradham is president of both leagues as well as the Sally.

... The Cremo Process guarantees Cremo Purity... that's why I certify these cigars sanitary and safe!"

Alfred W. McCann

D. Litt., A.B., LL.D., famous pure food expert, long active in crusades for pure foods and sanitary factories.

"Cremo cigars are made as you would have them made—as safe as certified foods!"

"Every tobacco leaf entering the Cremo factory is scientifically treated by U. S. Government approved methods. And every sanitary precaution known to science is taken to safeguard its purity along each step of the way."

"Cremo cigars are folded, wrapped and tipped by amazing inventions without the menace of spit... in factories that are models of cleanliness... air-flooded, sun-bathed, spotlessly clean."

"This Cremo purity is sealed... in separate sanitary foil wrappers. Thus the method of manufacture insures a cigar that aims to give you the same standard as found in certified milk."

Here's a suggestion deliberately made with confidence, which you smokers of imported cigars will appreciate. Try a Certified Cremo. You will recognize the superiority of Certified Cremo which starts with the choicest and tenderest leaves, ripe and mellow, and continues in goodness through a slow, expensive maturing and mellowing process... topped off with the finest imported Sumatra wrapper. For 5 cents you get the delight of a high priced cigar for Certified Cremo contains no scrap—no floor sweepings—all long filler—all fresh, tender, leaves. Over $7,000,000 was spent in perfecting the method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo that insures uniformly fine, clean cigars. Foil-wrapped... sanitary... crush-proof... the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall must have had in mind when he said: "What this country needs most is a good 5-cent cigar."

Do you remember the old, filthy shop where the man in the window rolled the leaves with dirty fingers... and spit on the ends? What a far cry this is from the modern method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo.

CAUTIOUS COMMENT
IN THE PRESS

Tempe Says MacDon-

cism, Not Politics."

By ARNO DOSCH FLEUROT,
Paris Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

PARIS, Oct. 7.—France in all probability will accept the invitation to a five-power naval parley conference. In doing so, this country is expected to express its understanding that the conference will be a continuation of the ad-journed Washington conference. The opinion prevails that President Hoover and Premier MacDonald will not take any definite stand respecting submarines as it would mean opposition to the projected conference from three powers.

Before the conference is convened France would first like to have a precise idea of the character of the understanding between Great Britain and the United States and whether it is confined to questions of warships and armaments, or whether the two big nations are to go into the conference with a prior agreement that would affect other participants in the deliberation, notably, whether they would have a program for the abolition of submarines.

The same considerations are reported to be influencing Italian opinion. While the French and Italians have not made common cause, France is unwilling to accept naval parity with Italy—both countries are waiting to see what MacDonald's visit before they accept or refuse invitations to a five-power conference.

As is usual in such circumstances, Le Temps indicates the line of thought at the Foreign Office, saying that MacDonald's message seems to be an act of faith asking what he really expects to get from it. Commenting on the British Premier's New York speech and the reference in it to the spiritual power behind the two great Anglo-Saxon nations, Le Temps says: "This is mysticism, not politics."

As Le Temps interprets MacDonald's trip, the British Premier in America to obtain Anglo-Saxon co-operation in all questions, including peace, "not exactly an alliance nor an alliance, but the co-operation under the domination of the spiritual bonds of peoples having a strong affinity. First, we must see how that works out."

MacDonald may have put aside material purposes, says Le Temps. "Americans, who understand how to conciliate idealism and necessities, are not susceptible to mere magic."

Year Than Last; Income About
$1,500,000,000.

MOSCOW, Oct. 7.—The total budget of the Soviet Government for 1929-1930 as approved by the Council of People's Commissars amounts to 2,298,000,000 rubles (approximately $1,194,000,000), which is about 43 per cent more than the year.

The amount appropriated for education shows an increase of 43 per cent, while the amounts for agriculture and development of industry are increased by 44 and 54 per cent, respectively. About $90,000,000 will be spent on road building, a new item in the Soviet budget.

The total income of the state for 1929-1930 will be slightly more than $1,500,000,000. A striking feature of the budget is the great growth in revenue from non-taxable sources such as railroads, industries and state trade, which increased by 54 per cent.

Before the conference is convened France would first like to have a precise idea of the character of the understanding between Great Britain and the United States and whether it is confined to questions of warships and cruisers, or whether the two big nations are to go into the conference with a prior agreement that would affect other particular matters in the deliberation, notably whether they would have a binding program for the abolition of submarines.

The same considerations are reported to be influencing Italian and American opinion. The French and Italian governments have not made common cause, because France is unwilling to accept a partial parity with Italy—both nations are waiting to see what comes of MacDonald's visit before they accept or refuse invitations to the five-power conference.

"This is mysticism, not politics." It goes on to express the opinion that it is more worthy of a modern nation to bound by economic necessities.

As Le Temps interprets MacDonald's trip, the British Premier is in America to obtain Anglo-American cooperation in all questions, including peace, "not merely an alliance, but the closest cooperation under the domination of the spiritual bonds of the peoples having a strong affinity. First, we must see how that works out."

MacDonald may have put aside material purposes, says Le Temps, "Americans, who understand peace, are not susceptible to such things."

Democrats Offer.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—The Senate today adopted a Democratic amendment to the tariff bill to restore the existing law as it defines United States value, thus rejecting Republican amendments which would have permitted appraisers in certain cases to resort to an estimated value in levying ad valorem rates.

The vote gave the Democrats their second victory in a week over the administration Republicans the first coming on their substitute for the present flexible tariff plan.

The vote today was 44 to 27 for amendment to be offered by Senator King, (Dem.) Utah. Ten Republicans joined 24 Democrats for the amendment, while one Democrat, Kendrick, Wyoming voted with 36 Republicans against it.

The independent Republican group, headed by Senator Borah, has initiated a series of conferences, beginning today, to work out a definite program to follow as the rate schedules come under consideration.

Senator Simmons (Dem.), North Carolina, served notice that the Democrats were not going to abandon the "principle that actuated us in opposing their flexible provision policy as advocated by the President."

Simmons' statement, issued by the Democratic National Committee, warned that the Democratic-Republican independent coalition would insist on retention of the minority plan to have the Tariff Commission report to Congress instead of the President and not proceed from its position.

MADISON, Va., Oct. 7.—A tree trunk, felled by the wind across the upper stretch of the Rapidan River in the wilderness of the Blue Ridge Mountains, became a historic landmark yesterday.

The President of the United States and the Prime Minister of Great Britain sat upon it, dangled their feet over the racing waters of the stream, smoked their pipes, and talked about the relationship of the two great naval powers to the peace of the world.

Both men were in "roughing clothes." Ramsay MacDonald was said to have started out in tweed knickers and Herbert Hoover in the leggings which he straps around whatever pair of trousers he happens to be wearing when he decides to take a walk. They were alone for about three-quarters of an hour.

A warm sun came up after a night which buried all at Rapidan camp under thick layers of blankets. MacDonald slept in one of the guest cabins about 100 yards from the Hoover "shack," and his daughter, Miss Isabel, in an adjoining guest cabin.

Oatmeal and Pancakes.

Breakfast was served at 8 o'clock in the community dining hall. Oatmeal, or as MacDonald would call it, "porridge," griddle cakes, sausage and eggs were the heavier dishes.

After breakfast Mr. Hoover and Mr. MacDonald and the other members of the party, Mrs. Hoover, Miss MacDonald, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, Sir Robert Van Sittart, who is MacDonald's secretary; R. L. Craigie, chief of the American division of the British Foreign Office; Lawrence Rich-

Arousing False Fear in Public Mind.By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—"Make no little plans. They have no magic to stir man's blood and probably themselves will not be realized. Make big plans."

This quotation from the late Dr. H. Burnham, noted architect, is on the fireplace in the penthouse studio of his son, namesake and professional follower. The younger Burnham is president of the Chicago Regional Planning Association, which has made big plans and is carrying them out consistently in a magical way that indeed stirs the imagination.

The Regional Planning Committee of the American Civic Association, which met in that studio last week, was taken for extended tours of the Cook County portion of the Chicago region, which embraces 8000 square miles in 15 counties in Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin.

These experts and enthusiasts from other centers of regional planning were much impressed by the accomplishments in the Chicago region and the fine degree of co-operation it obtains from the governmental units which form its membership inside Chicago. The Chicago Plan Commission does similar work. Details of how the planners get what they go after have been told in previous dispatches. In addition to working through public officials, the regional body has succeeded in arousing much public interest, particularly in the outlying communities, and frequent use is made of citizen advisory groups.

What Has Been Done.

Many millions of dollars have been spent by the people in carrying out the plans, step by step, and expenditure of hundreds of millions more is in contemplation in Chicago and the region. The policy has been adopted of withholding the detailed figures to prevent arousing false fear in the public mind. Boldness is the watchword.

Some of the striking developments seen by the visiting planners in Chicago were:

Straightening of the Chicago River, involving relocation of vast railroad yards and construction of a viaduct over dry land, followed by digging of the new channel beneath it.

Double-decking of Michigan avenue as well as Wacker drive in the vicinity of Chicago River, using these thoroughfares and Canal street and Roosevelt road as a great quadrangle of broad arteries surrounding the loop, to free the restricted business area.

The old Illinois Central Station facing Grant Park, the famous lake front park, which the railroad has agreed to replace with an $88,000,000 structure.

Use of air rights to gain building space, shown by the new Daily News Building.

Elevated Highways to Loop.

Plans for several elevated highways to the loop.

The new South Shore Parkway, on the reclaimed lake front, which is being completed as an artery from the extreme South Side to the loop, and which soon will be connected with the north shore drive, with a future extension into and through Evanston, providing more than 14 miles of picturesque roadway from Northwest to University to the southern end of Evanston.

Separation of grades at intersecting main roads, carried out in Lincoln Parkway, South Shore Parkway and elsewhere.

Clearing of Beach, where a comparatively new building will be abandoned because many acres of land are being added along the lake front; a new beach will be built farther out.

Sewage treatment plants serving large populations.

20,000 in Reichstag Square
For Funeral of Dr. StresemannRuffle of Muffled Drums, Roar of Black-Streamed Planes as Last Honors Are Paid to German Statesman.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 7.—Gustav Stresemann, Foreign Minister of the German Republic, yesterday was buried with ceremonies participated in by Germans of all political faiths except the extreme Nationalists and Communists.

The ruffle of muffled drums and the roar of black-streamed airplanes circling above sounded throughout the Reichstag Square, where 20,000 persons packed virtually every inch of space and waited hours to pay the last honors of the nation to the man who had worn himself out in its service. Dr. Stresemann, when he died suddenly last Thursday, was only 51 years old and his physicians said he reportedly had disregarded warnings that his health could not stand the strain of his intensive work.

The treetop and even the top of the great Victory monument in the square were crowded.

Within the Reichstag the bier was flanked by tall candles on the raised dais of the President's chair. Uniformed students formed the guard of honor. All members of the legislative body were present except those of the extreme right and left.

Diplomats in their brilliant uniforms were in the balcony beside the former Imperial box. The German members rose as Frau Stresemann and her two sons entered the box with President Paul von Hindenburg. The Berlin philharmonic orchestra played the overture to "Coriolanus."

The work of Dr. Stresemann raised Germany "from helplessness back to an equal place among nations," said Chancellor Hermann Mueller as he began his eulogy.

"Dr. Stresemann will go down in history as the builder of Germany's resurrection. It is our task to continue his work in his spirit. We have lost a great statesman and leader who, in the words of Goethe, was a man, and that means a fighter."

The funeral cortege was headed by a corps of mounted police and following the body on foot were the Stresemann sons, President von Hindenburg, Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary General of the League of Nations; Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank; Vice President von Kardorff of the Reichstag and the entire diplomatic corps. Automobiles carried nearly 1000 mourners, including the mother of Dr. Stresemann and other woman relatives.

Typically all of the nations of the world, a great impetus would be given to change this condition with advantage accruing to the consumer and producer alike."

PARIS, Oct. 7.—A question all Paris has been asking—whether the romance of Aga Khan and Madeline Marcelle Sophie Caron, is to culminate in a marriage—was answered in the affirmative yesterday by the Indian potentate. He announced at Aix-les-Bains on his return from the Mediterranean with his fiancée that they are to be married Dec. 4.

The courtship of the Prince and his fiancée began in a dreamlike establishment in Paris of which she and her sister were proprietors. It was first reported that they first met in a candy shop at Chambray where Miss Caron was employed. She is the daughter of an executive of a large hotel in Paris.

Investigation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—A world-wide investigation to determine whether there is an "under-consumption" of farm products is proposed by Senator Nye (Rep.) of North Dakota, in a letter to W. M. Citrine, secretary of the Trades Union Congress of London.

Nye invited Citrine to have the congress make the examination as a means of giving impetus to greater consumption and benefit to the consumer and producer.

"Heretofore," Nye's letter said, "any discussion or consideration of the farm problem in America has found more emphasis placed upon the disposition of the so-called surplus of our farm products. I have long been confident that were the real facts known as to the under-consumption of products in prin-

STORM SWEEPS BRITISH ISLES, PORTUGAL AND BRITANNYHeavy Damage Done Along English Coast; Many Districts Flooded.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Windstorms, with gusts of between 50 and 60 miles an hour velocity, struck the British Isles over the week-end and did considerable damage. Portugal and Brittany also suffered.

Streams in the mountain districts were swelled by the torrential rains accompanying the wind and broke down bridges, flooded villages, and drove residents from their homes.

There was great damage along the coast, small craft and light structures being destroyed. The south coast of England was badly hit, especially Weymouth, Bournemouth and Exeter.

Ireland was hard hit. Bridges were swept away in the county of Tyrone, and many cattle drowned and crops destroyed. The floods caused householders in some districts to take refuge in the upper floors of their homes.

A passenger plane from Paris to London narrowly escaped a waterspout over the Channel. The Daily Mail quoted a passenger as saying the machine was at the very edge of the disturbance before the pilot got it clear. The passengers were all thrown about, made sick and terrified.

Conditions at Big Spring Park.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In a recent report to Gov. Caulfield by D. C. Simons, State Game and Fish Commissioner, a saving is shown in his department for the past nine months of $25,324.

It is easy to save money if nothing is spent. I will cite Big Spring Park as an example. This has been one of the most popular camping grounds in the State. I make several visits each year to the park. In previous years there has been a park keeper to look after things in the day and a night watchman to protect campers at night. This year there is neither park keeper nor night man. Campers at night are left to the mercy of any hoodlums who happen in. On a recent visit a party of this kind came in at 11 o'clock at night, broke up a table for a bonfire and kept the rest of the campers awake nearly all night with riotous songs and profane language. There was no one in authority to stop it. There is a park rule against unleashed dogs, but the dogs run free and are a menace to grown people as well as children. There are signs posted along the spring branch forbidding wading or washing in the branch. However, people wash dishes and clothing in the branch and there is no one to call them about it. This summer the State Board of Health tested the water in the branch and found it pure at the spring, but at the bridge, 200 yards away, the water contained both typhoid and malaria germs. On top of this dirty dish water and garbage from the park stand are dumped in the branch at the bridge and campers on the lower part of the branch have to use this water for cooking and drinking.

The man who runs the State turkey farm, three miles away, was told early this year to look after the park until a park keeper was appointed. He does the best he can, but it is not easy for a man to work on two jobs when the jobs are three miles apart.

In the two floods last year a lot of tables and benches were lost. They have not been replaced and there are not enough tables and benches now to accommodate the few campers who have stopped at the park this year. On the night of July 4, 1927, there were 41 tents in the park. On the same date last year there were 76 tents. This year there were 12 tents. It doesn't take tourists long to warn each other of places to avoid and this is what is happening in this case.

Up to Sept. 1, the commissioner had made two very brief visits to the park. He hasn't been around enough for people at the park to know what he looks like. Saving traveling expenses and hotel bills, I presume.

The spring branch is being allowed to fill up with logs, moss and sandbars. Revenue from hunting and fishing licenses amounts to more than $250,000 a year and the last provides this money shall be used for the purchase and maintenance of State parks. Why not use the money for the purpose intended? Why let the parks go to the devil for lack of upkeep? I believe the money saved this year will be lost in future years in license fees, and they will, if there is no fishing, there will be no money to pay Mr. Simons his pension.

Natural Bridge Car Line.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Is it possible to find out and publish the reason why the Natural Bridge car line has never been extended out Natural Bridge road?

The city has had four-fifths of its street left open for this purpose and remaining fifth can easily be graded. The county part is lying idle waiting for the Public Service Company to do something. This immediate action which would be served by this line has increased 50 per cent in population and would increase 100 per cent more than in five years time would more than repay the Public Service Co. for its investment.

Chambers of Commerce and Government
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
It is an indisputable fact that conditions have reached the point in this country where municipal government is almost wholly by direction of chambers of commerce. The local domination falls far short of satisfying the consuming desire of these organizations to rule; they long also for control of the various State governments. And, encouraged by the meek submission to their will of town and city councils, commissions and managers, they are sending their representatives to every session of practically every State Legislature where they endeavor to influence legislators in their work, and bring about the passage of laws that are of doubtful benefit to them, but which, almost invariably, are of a character that is detrimental to the people in general.

Unless the people of the rural districts take immediate cognizance of the activities of these self-serving associations and adopt methods to effectively counteract their influence, they may soon find themselves as completely dominated by them as are town and city dwellers.

THE WASHINGTON DRAMA.

Washington is now on all front pages. Prime Minister MacDonald as the guest of President Hoover is sharing with his host the scrutinizing attention of the world's chancelleries. Guest and host are commanding, too, the solemn deference of mankind. The hope has been born and has grown almost into belief that, under the auspices of hospitality, the President and Prime Minister are preparing the first draft of what posterity may treasure as the proclamation of humanity's emancipation from war. It is a pregnant moment in history.

In the Washington tableau, however, there are other figures, from which familiarity and venality have long since stripped their glamour, but which, in their several destinies, should be viewed with anxiety by the American people. The trio are Albert B. Fall, Edward L. Doheny and, in the humiliating isolation of a common jail, Harry F. Sinclair.

Fall is in Washington to be tried on the charge of accepting a bribe from Doheny in the Elk Hills oil lease. Doheny, acquitted of having bribed the former Cabinet officer, is in Washington as witness for the defense. Sinclair is unwillingly and traitorally in Washington by order of the law.

It is unnecessary to rehearse the assault upon the Government and the theft of Government property in which these men conspired. It is unnecessary to say that the gigantic steal failed—that the Government, in civil litigation, recovered the oil lands and complete indemnity for the values that had been looted. And public indignation has amply expressed itself that men involved in a crime of such magnitude could have gone scot free of legal punishment.

What we may, and seriously should be, concerned with is this: that a crime of such character, committed in 1921 should, after more than eight years, still be in the courts, that the "faithless public servant," Fall, thus described by our Supreme Court, should still be fencing for his wretched liberty with the law. Truly, as Chief Justice Taft said many years ago, "the administration of our criminal justice is a national disgrace."

The subject is, in our opinion, especially pertinent at this time because of the efforts of the Hoover administration to revitalize our criminal courts. The services of a distinguished lawyer have just been called upon to draft a code for the better enforcement of prohibition and, secondarily, to relieve the court congestion induced by that summary law. A similar effort, though of vastly larger scope, is that of the President's crime commission which is to survey the whole field of criminality and submit a solution for a situation which the President regards as a national menace. Yet it is a foregone conclusion that public interest in the report of the Wickersham commission will be focused on its prohibition enforcement recommendations, and, with similar assurance, it may be predicted that public judgment on that report will be divided in practically the same measure as public sentiment on the question of prohibition is divided.

We submit that the crime problem cannot be solved by any legal devices, however drastic, for the better enforcement of prohibition. The bootlegger as an armed enemy of law and order may threaten the authority of the Constitution, but we believe there is far greater danger to our constitutional government in the fact that our courts have been unable to bring offenders like Sinclair, Doheny and Fall to justice and that after eight impotent years a Cabinet officer's sordid betrayal of his high trust should still be on the docket.

Such is the drama of Washington today, with its promise and its shame.

THE STRICTLY MODERN ANCIENTS.

It seems possible to find almost any desired object in an ancient tomb. The latest discovery is that of a zipper, that handy device for fastening tobacco pouches and galoshes, which was unearthed in a Viking burial ground near Tilist, East Prussia. The modern age has known this contraption less than 15 years, and credits it to a Swedish engineer. Safety pins, supposedly a modern convenience, have been found in ancient Pompeii. A few weeks ago a rubber shoe was reported from a tomb near Budapest, although the first historical account of rubber is in Columbus' story of his second voyage. Ur of the Chaldees yielded powder puffs and eyebrow tweezers, and the royal lipstick was found to have been laid to rest with the widow of King Tut.

The preacher of Ecclesiastes spoke wisely when he said, "There is no new thing under the sun." It would not be surprising to hear of Caligula's platinum-plated radio set being fished out of Lake Nemi's mud or of Mrs. Noah's electric washing machine reposing in the debris of the ark.

Mohamed Jovithich, 134-year-old native of Jugoslavia, says he has lived to be 134 because he eats little and abstains from tobacco. Cigarette companies may find solace in the fact that his better half claims to 136 and is named Fatima.

A MERCANTILE UTOPIA.

The storekeeper's paradise has been discovered at last. It is on the Gold Coast (of Africa, not Chicago). There are plenty of customers, all wealthy. Their food and most of their clothing, of which they need little, are nature's gifts. A little work in gathering wild products of their country gives them plenty of ready cash. Money is no good to them and as they distrust banks, they are eager to spend, and they don't know the meaning of installment buying or charge accounts. Utilitarian articles have no appeal, but they buy eagerly any sort of gaudy luxury. And paradoxically, a bargain sale is bad for business.

All this was discussed recently at a meeting of the Association of West African Merchants at Liverpool. A speaker warned the members about cutting prices when business is dull, as would be done in a civilized country. The sturdy African doesn't mind paying a stiff price for goods, he said. But when the price is cut in an effort to stimulate business, past purchases depreciate in his opinion, he becomes suspicious and hoards his money. And of course the merchant shudders at the thought of hoarded native wealth. The speaker advised showing a larger line of attractive trinkets when business slows up.

Even though it goes against common business sense, purveyors to the Gold Coast aristocracy doubtless will be quick to seize the opportunity. Loading a ship with a choice assortment of kewpie dolls, mus-cal powder boxes, celluloid rattles, auto horns, colorful lollipops, feather dusters, gay cricket sweaters and 10-cent store jewelry, all with a high mark-up, they will proceed to make a killing.

EUROPE AND THE GREEK STATES.

Among interesting commentaries upon M. Briand's dream of a United States of Europe is that of a Swiss contributor to the London Spectator. He is not optimistic, and points out that Europe bears about the same relation to America that the Greek states bore to Rome.

He says: "On the one hand, a congeries of tiny states, depositories of all the humanities and culture of their day, but heavily burdened with the baneful inheritance of traditional rivalries and hatreds; on the other hand, a single mighty organism, still relatively uncultured and crude, ever growing in power and riches, absorbing and assimilating all to itself."

Such were the Greek states to Rome in the second century B. C., and such are, in his opinion, the states of Europe and America. Continuing this interesting parallel, he says: "If the Greek states could have united against this common rival the course of history might have been quite different. But Greece could never unite; she carried the seeds of dissension in her bones from centuries back. She started not one but two leagues of nations, the Achaean and the Aetolian. They quarreled between themselves and thus complicated matters still further. She was a thorn in the flesh of Rome, just as we shall very soon be a thorn in the flesh of America. At length Rome's patience was at an end, and she made a Roman province of the lot."

There lies against this argument the greater civilization of modern Europe. The writer admits this when he says: "The world has changed since the days of the Greeks. We are possessed of means of communication which beggar all the dreams of society. Civilization is fast becoming standardized. We are all interested in the same things, play the same games, wear the same clothes, dance to the same tunes and listen to the same concerts and lectures. These are circumstances unprecedented in history. Surely mankind will react to them in some unprecedented way. This is what Mr. Norman Angell thinks and hopes, and we heartily share that hope."

Nevertheless, the parallel is impressive. It is true of the peoples of modern Europe that the seeds of dissension are in their bones, and it is hard to believe they can be bred out. Let us hope they can.

ATTAGIRLS!

The St. Louis W. C. T. U., in convention assembled, has protested against the action of the Board of Education in naming a school for the late Adolphus Busch. They contend it is inconsistent to honor a manufacturer of beer in a state where school children are taught the evil effects of alcohol on the human system. We will say this for the girls: They did their best—and their best is pretty good—to prevent this action of the Board of Education. And even now that they have lost their fight, they refuse to give up. May we propose a toast—to be drunk with cold filtered river water—to the girls' indomitable spirit? As poor losers, they are superb.

There are many lessons in school textbooks, and just now Kentucky is busy learning some of them.

A ROSE TO A NOSE.

Isabel MacDonald does not use cosmetics—she does not even powder her nose.

From the news.
Sonnets to eyebrows have been writ, and to every tint of eyes odors have been done and lyrics spun and dithyrambic sighs. But now to a charm hitherto unused we fling a Flirian rose—to a bright and beaming and gayly gleaming serene, unpowdered nose.

THE CIVIL LIBERTIES UNION.

The American Civil Liberties Union is engaged in a campaign to raise $20,000, the annual cost of operation. This year an effort is being made to draft the entire amount from individual contributors, without resort to financial "angels" who have supported the organization in the past. Surely this is a modest sum in view of the work which the Union does throughout the nation in behalf of the right of free speech and free assembly. Its national committee is composed of such distinguished men as Clarence Darrow, John Dewey, Oswald Garrison Villard and others almost equally well known. While many of its activities inevitably find their way into print, the Union does a vast deal of quiet work to combat repression.

No cause, however controversial, should be permitted to weigh against the Bill of Rights, and the country sometimes needs to be reminded that there is such an instrument. The Civil Liberties Union is no more popular in some quarters during a test of strength between capital and labor than the Bill of Rights was when slavery tried to kick this bulwark of our liberties into the Potomac, but time will bear it out.

Anyway, Miss MacDonald is the Isabel of disarmament.

The "Margin of Difference" on Parity

Britain and U. S. now close enough together for real agreement; Hoover and MacDonald will meet with nothing to keep them apart except slight differences of opinion on cruisers; relations of two countries safe, with real danger of armament race over; situation about to end contained germ of the first steps toward war.

From the Manchester Guardian

SOME fears have been expressed that Mr. MacDonald would go to the United States backed by the enthusiastic support of this country and still be unable to "deliver the goods." His latest authoritative statement makes it clear that there is no danger of any such tragic fiasco. There is, it is true, still a "margin of difference." It is a margin which can be summed up as a difference of opinion about three 6-inch gun cruisers and a total tonnage of 30,000. In the present state of public opinion and with the negotiations in the hands of men as determined to reach agreement as Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Hoover, it is inconceivable that this difference should not prove easily soluble.

True, trivial differences of this character were permitted to wreck the last naval disarmament conference. But there was a vital difference in the conditions. Since then we have had the peace pact and a change of government both in Great Britain and in the United States. Mr. Churchill is no longer in the way, and half-splitting about the meaning of parity has gone with him. The preliminaries to the present negotiations have been conducted in a wholly different spirit; Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Hoover do not talk of "concessions" as if the building of battleships were a blessing which could only be forborne as a favor. Naval experts, who are perfectly loyal civil servants, have co-operated throughout the preliminary discussions. Why? Because they have been treated as experts and not as policymakers. Men trouble the mind of the navy minister, if given the opportunity, oppose naval reduction. Lord Salisbury once said that if you trusted doctors nothing was healthy, and if you trusted military experts nothing was safe.

But today, with the help of the peace pact, we all know that, given ordinary common sense, our relations with the United States are perfectly safe. The margin of difference is only a technical margin, and a narrow one at that. There is no political or economic difference which need trouble the mind of any sensible man on either side of the Atlantic.

The proposed agreement between Great Britain and the United States is in itself only in the nature of a preliminary. It is a vital preliminary, since the five-power conference, which will meet probably in January next (not as originally arranged, next December), could have little hope of success unless the two chief powers were able to reach substantial accord before the conference began. That result is now achieved, and it will not be a matter of importance if the final adjustment of the small margin of difference between them is not bridged until the five-power conference meets. For failure to reach complete agreement is not now due to any fear felt by those states for each other, but to the view taken by each as to the fleet it needs in view of the general world situation. Limitation is therefore agreed upon; reduction should follow in the five-power conference. It is to be hoped that that conference will be regarded as the real successor to the Washington conference of 1921, and that the whole question of first class battleships, as well as of submarines (which British and American experts regard as unnecessary), will be fully dealt with.

If the five-power conference should really take that form, the agreements of 1921 will be revised a year before the date contemplated by the Washington conference. That is now the object in view: a real "disarmament" conference—a conference, that is, not on the limitation of armaments, but one which achieves their reduction. It will be a very difficult object to attain, but if it is attained the present margin of difference between Great Britain and the United States will have ceased to have even technical existence.

The difficulties of world naval reduction are yet to come. For the moment we may rejoice that at any rate the very real danger of a race in naval armaments is over. How great that danger was is not always recognized. If history were really "determined," if one gloomy theory that men were bound by forces outside their control always to repeat their mistakes was anything but a gloomy fallacy, Great Britain and the United States would now have entered upon that period of rivalry which century by century has culminated in war between the two strongest political and economic powers.

To those who remembered the history of Anglo-German relationships during the 70 years which preceded the last war nothing was so ominous as the repetition of the phrase that war between Great Britain and the United States was "unthinkable." War between us and "our German cousins" was for years pronounced "unthinkable," until with equal gibberish, men began to term it "inevitable." We were perhaps again on the edge of that slope. We have been saved from taking the first dangerous steps. Powerful economic forces which have sufficed to turn other countries into the paths of an aggressive imperialism were at work also in the United States. But the big navy party suffered last year a defeat from which happily it should now never recover.

The outstanding problem which still makes for ill will between the British Commonwealth of nations and the United States is the doctrine of the freedom of the seas—an ironical name for an out-of-date theory which Great Britain was able to impose upon other nations when Britannia ruled the waves alone. When that cause of ill will is gone we may feel that the English-speaking people have turned their backs upon the slope that leads to war and are on the high ground beyond which is peace.

A LESSON IN ASTRONOMY.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

A GROUP of tourists, shepherded by a guide rambled down a long corridor of the Capitol from the Senate Chamber toward the rotunda.

Now fading from iron gray to white, his heels rang sharply, defiantly, at every swift step. And as he marched, the strains of "Dixie" whistled shrill and clear as a fire, kept cadence with his swift step. "Who's that?" asked a tourist of the guide, looking back down the corridor after the striding figure. "Oh, that's Senator Cole Blaise of South Carolina." Very, very much of South Carolina is Senator Blaise, South Carolina of the '80's. Among documents with which Blaise fills the Congressional Record from time to time you find many far-off echoes of the conflict of those days.

FOR the most part, however, it seems to be the Senator's mission to keep alive memories of the heroes of South Carolina birth. And recently chance favored him with a very special opportunity.

Some Senator in debate mentioned Nazim Kosztka, Hungarian patriot and naturalized citizen, who had been killed in Smyrna by gallantry of Capt. Duncan Ingraham, U. S. N., of South Carolina.

The paragraph caught the eye of John N. Taylor, M. D., of Crawfordville, Ind., who wrote Blaise recalling that epic of American naval tradition, July 3, 1918. Blaise put the letter into the Record.

It is a thrilling story. Kosztka, who had fled Hungary and taken his first papers in the United States, had been seized on Turkish soil by Austrian authorities. He was held prisoner aboard an Austrian brig of war which, with three other Austrian warcraft, lay at Smyrna.

Next day he would be taken to Trieste for certain execution; but into the harbor came the American corvette St. Louis, 28 guns and 200 men. Ingraham commanding.

Kosztka's friends rushed to the Turkish skipper. Aboard the Austrian, Ingraham demanded to see Kosztka and asked if he were an American citizen.

"With a despairing glance about him which took in the single small American vessel and the four Austrian ones . . . Kosztka said: 'I am lost.'"

Dr. Taylor's account continues. Proof of Kosztka's possession of American papers reached Ingraham during the night. He went again to the Austrian brig.

This time Kosztka made his claim to American protection. Ingraham served his ultimatum, backing it with cleared decks on the tiny St. Louis. She slipped her anchor and stood down close to the four-ship Austrian squadron. At the last moment the Austrians gave in, turning Kosztka over to the French Consul.

Ingraham got the thanks of Congress and a special medal.

That's the sort of history Blaise likes to keep alive, that and "Dixie."

Growing Debt

LIFE AND LETTERS OF STUART SHERMAN. By Jacob Zeitlin and Homer Woodbridge (Farrar and Rinehart).

Just beginning business a few weeks ago, the publishing firm of Farrar & Rinehart immediately placed the discriminating public in its debt by issuing a series of books of far more than ordinary merit, and, as suggested by the title, "The Growing Debt." The public's debt to this firm is further increased by the publication in two handsome volumes of the late Stuart Sherman's letters, edited with a running biographical commentary by the friends of the critic. Evidently the editors undertook the task as a labor of love and it is admirably performed.

Whatever certain critical lords of misrule and flunkies of the book-reviewing clique may have said to the contrary, Stuart Sherman was a man in his years of freedom, it means obviously true that his was one of the finest critical intelligences that America has produced in our day. How much might be the future to decide—after a remote future, for it is inconceivable that already we have entered upon a period in which criticism and interest there shall cease, leaving the first duty to literary assessmen. Sherman was a richly literate, warmly human and eminently sane personality, and here we may follow the development of that personality from early boyhood. This is a privilege for which to be grateful. The book ends in tragedy; but at least what was the nature of that tragedy there is a difference of opinion. Many readers will regard the critic's death at the age of 45 as the tragic thing, while others, no less sincere in their admiration of the man and his work, look upon his going to New York and what happened to him there as a cause for deeper sorrow.

To the public at large," say the editors, "Stuart Sherman is known as an active critic, who during the greater part of his writing career, defended conservative standards in literature and manners alongside of Mr. Paul More and Prof. Irving Babson, and in opposition to the hosts of Mr. Mencken, and even, in a later year, with a surprising and somewhat disconcerting unness, deserted his friends and gave much comfort to his former antagonists without actually entering into an alliance with them."

The editors deny the charge, and maintain that the Letters will serve to show how "the latest manifestations of Sherman's mind and character were discernible from the beginning."

This will be questioned by many readers of the Letters, who may ask why the change was so abrupt and why it coincided with the removal from Urbana to New York. Even though the well-known

Growing Debt

AND LETTERS OF STUART P. SHERMAN. By Jacob L. Neihardt and Homer Woodbridge (Pittsburgh and Rinehart).

UPON beginning business a few weeks ago, the publishing firm placed the discriminating public in its debt by issuing a series of books of far more than ordinary merit, and, as suggested by a week or so ago, it may even have added a classic to American literature in "A Victorian Village."

The public's debt to this new firm is further increased by the publication of two handsome volumes of the late Stuart Sherman's letters, edited with a running commentary by two old friends of the critic. Evidently the editors undertook the task as a labor of love and it is admirably performed.

Whatever certain critical lords of misrule and flunkies of the go-getting clique may have been inclined to say about Stuart Sherman in his years of freedom, it remains obviously true that his was one of the finest critical intelligences that America has produced in our day. How much more might be said of him is a matter for the future to decide—perhaps a remote future, for it is inconceivable that already we have entered upon a period in which criticism and interest thereunto literary salesmen. Sherman was a richly literate, warmly human and eminently sane personality, and here we may follow the development of that personality from his early boyhood. This is a book for which to be grateful.

The book ends in tragedy; but as the last was the nature of that tragedy there is a difference of opinion. Many readers will regret the critic's death at the age of 41 as the tragic thing, while others, no less sincere in their admiration of the man and his work, may look upon his going to New York and what happened to him there as a cause for deeper sorrow. charge should be true, it could not destroy the fact that a fine critical intelligence was involved and one to which America is indebted; nor could it be held justly against the character of the man. Rather, it would be only another saddening example of what "success" may do to a fine, free spirit, and of the tremendous difficulty of being an "outsider" in New York and getting anywhere. Nor should it be assumed that a man with such a mind need have been conscious of any mean triumph.

The happy sense of triumph in being called from the despoiled Middle West to a high critical position in New York would be likely to soften any but a granite heart. Sherman had developed as an individual far from the powerful literary cliques and he had been nourished by the best that men have thought and felt and done throughout the ages. His isolation from the loud moment had made it possible for him to feel the wisdom of Taine, and it was as though he were viewing the contemporary scene from the vantage point of posterity. He had been free of group thinking in Urbana, and while there he was that very rare thing, an autonomous individual. But in New York group opinion dominates. There is nothing harder for a social-minded human being to resist than the opinion of his group, yet it is clear enough that all the curious literary imbecilities of our day have been incubated within groups. A sane man will come to accept as a member of a group what he could not possibly countenance as an individual.

It is announced that Nathalie Crane, now 15 years old and in her third year of high school, is about to publish her sixth book. This time it is a novel, and the publisher, remembering her former novel, written at the age of 12, assure us that "she is no longer using 24 words just because they sound pretty, but because they mean something."

The Head Men

MORAN AND MACK, the two Black Crows, display all their familiar lines in "Why Bring That Up" at the Ambassador this week and while every one in the audience knows every word of the dialogue by heart there is considerable interest in seeing the two black face artists illustrate the jokes they have told to millions of persons by way of the phonograph and radio. There is a thin little plot to hold the sketches together, but it doesn't matter one way or the other, for most of the affair is devoted to Moran and Mack doing their stuff—and doing it well.

Glenn and Jenkins, widely known team of blackface wisecrackers, are at the St. Louis Theater this week. The A. B. PRINCESS MARY NOW

COUNTRESS HAREWOOD

Her Husband, Viscount Lascelles, Succeeds the Earl on His Death.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Princess Mary, Viscountess Lascelles, only daughter of King George and Queen Mary, has become Princess Mary, Countess of Harewood. Her husband, Viscount Lascelles, succeeded to the title with the death yesterday of his father.

Princess Mary's eldest son, the Honorable George Henry Hubert Lascelles, grandson of King George and seventh in line of succession to the throne, became the Viscount Lascelles, succeeding to the title his father has held for years. The new Viscount is but 18 years old.

The Earl, who was 82 years old, died yesterday afternoon at his home, Harewood House, Knaresborough, Yorkshire, after a lingering pulmonary trouble. Besides two sons and a daughter, his wife, the Countess of Harewood, survives.

He was the fifth to hold his title, although the family was prominent from the days of Edward I. The family is one of the wealthiest of England. The old Lord was a personal friend of Edward VII, and of George V, to whom he was aide-de-camp.

Princess Mary and his eldest son, the new Earl, were married Feb. 28, 1922. They have two sons, one the new Viscount, and the Honorable Gerald Lascelles.

By the death of her father-in-law, Princess Mary becomes the chateleine of Harewood House, one of the most beautiful mansions in Yorkshire. It cost $600,000 of British royalty has used since Queen Victoria first visited the house when she was 16.

JEANNE EAGLES WORE JEWELS

WORTH $350,000 AT DEATH

Had $200,000 Diamond Ring and $500,000 String of Pearls.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—When Jeanne Eagles, stage and screen star, left her apartment last Thursday night to go to Park Avenue Hospital, where she died, she wore jewelry valued, according to a police estimate, at $350,000.

This was disclosed yesterday in a check-up of the property taken to the police station to be turned over to the public administrator.

Miss Eagles wore a six-carat diamond ring valued at $200,000 on her left hand. The diamond is oblong in shape, and set in platinum. She also wore pearls said by the police to be worth between $250,000 and $300,000, and a wedding ring set with seven diamonds, together with a white gold guard ring. There also were two strands of pearls, one of 59 and the other of 52 pearls, graduated and fastened with a diamond clasp.

THE HOTEL CORONADO

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 7. DIARY of a modern Peeps: Up to feast on crumpets and jam and did on my new Norfolk to ride in an amphibian plane from the Hudson but at the last moment too craven and watched it take off with my dog aboard, barking joyously. Nor ever have I felt so spineless.

So on a bus top and put in to see Monty Bell's pent house on lower Fifth avenue. Then northward and prowled about the silk district on Fourth avenue and in a dog and bird store where I saw a Mexican dog weighing but 11 ounces, yet nipped me on the finger.

In the evening to a tavern for dinner and to a play meeting John J. Raskob, whom I had never seen before, and talked to Walter Fowey, Col. Frank Knox and the ubiquitous Maury Paul, and at the curb Ring Lardner held out his hat like a beggar but did not fool me soever.

ONE of the gushing streets in the Ghetto's eternal boil is Ridge, trailing in disarray northward from the Delancey street bridge. It transplants slices of old world with bearded patriarchs, wigged wives and shawled immigrants trying to adjust themselves to the new. Here modesty is stifled by necessity. Entire families on sultry nights move to fire escapes and sleep in loin cloths. An evening of watermelon. Woo beside the naked shouting children, shrieking in a happy delirium. Narrow sidewalks are dotted with portable little stands selling penny drinks, penny ice creams and penny slices of watermelon. Woo beside the autoist who traverses the thoroughfare at more than snail-like speed. Streets are the children's playground and an offender will find himself in a shower of melon rinds, fruit sticks and stones. The ghetto, to the street, is a little economic, asks no sympathy but refuses to be a target for curiosity.

A CRACK advertising solicitor in a small Jersey city was offered a salary of $300 to transfer his talents to a New York newspaper. He declined, saying he was receiving the same salary where he was. A

NEW YORK doctors—at least two of them—are not prescribing so much rest and quiet to keep in condition. They are advising patients to live dangerously. One so advised must have sat back of me in the theater last night. He spent most of his time tapping time with his foot against my chair.

LIONS' CLUBS OPEN PERFECT BABY CONTEST

About 1000 Entrants for Prize Awards Will Be Examined by Doctors.

Ordinarily a falling thumb tack could be heard in the drafting room of the Board of Education building, 911 Locust. Not so today. It is the noisiest place in St. Louis and probably will continue to be so until Thursday night. The combined Lions' clubs most perfect baby contest clinic is functioning.

In the course of four days beginning at 9 o'clock this morning 1000 babies will be examined by physicians and nurses who have volunteered from the St. Louis Medical Society and eight hospitals to conduct the scoring. The first babies to arrive at the seventh floor waiting room ready for the examination were Frank John Cento, 3745 Lincoln avenue, three years old, and his two-year-old sister, Gloria Marie. In a short while the room was pretty well filled with mothers and babies.

Organization has made the big job work smoothly. The babies were registered Sept. 16-19 at the Lions' Club headquarters. Hours of examination have been individually assigned in order to prevent congestion. As soon as a baby arrives a number is given it, the only designation it has as it goes through the clinic. Two hundred and fifty babies will be scored each day.

The 10 most nearly perfect babies will be named at the Lions' community reception Oct. 12 in the Coliseum. Cups will be given to each with the largest for the perfect baby. Each mother will receive a detailed record of the examination of her baby. One set of triplets and four pairs of twins are entered.

It may be true that only three of the 1000 babies cried when they were registered, as the officials say, but everything about the clinic makes the babies cry. The cold scale top for instance, distresses all of them whether six months or

BANK MUST REPAY $63,500 EMBEZZLED

Fulton Iron Works of St. Louis
Wins Judgment in Manila Court.

By the Associated Press.
MANILA, Oct. 7.—Details of the judgment for $63,500 pesos (about $63,500) in favor of the Fulton Iron Works of St. Louis against the China Banking Corporation and Sydney Schwartzkopf, Manila attorney, in a civil suit to recover $131,287 pesos (about $65,539) were announced today.

The Fulton company charged that Schwartzkopf, who had been retained to collect old debts for them had deposited the money with the China Banking Corporation, withdrawing it in 1925 on personal checks.

In ordering Schwartzkopf and the bank to pay this money to the St. Louis firm the Court of First Instance ruled the bank should have exercised greater care in protecting the deposit.

The Fulton company was informed last Friday of the decision in its favor, but the amount of the judgment was not learned until today. Schwartzkopf was pardoned in 1926 after serving 18 months for embezzlement.

Three years, the age limits. Stethoscopes, of course, were a worry.

Fortunately for the scoring results conduct isn't being taken into account. Each of the five physicians on duty at a time with the assistance of a nurse gives the baby a complete physical examination.

The terrors of the clinic are still unknown in the waiting room and although entrants yet to go through the examination seem puzzled by the protesting shrieks, they toddle about visiting one another. No. 7, Billy Carson, 15 months old, of 4264 Page boulevard, made friends at first sight with No. 8, Eileen Coff, two years old, of 3722 Lee avenue, who did all she could to encourage the young beast brunnell.

15,000 AT FOREST PARK NEAR U. S. MARINE BAND Two Entertaining Programs With Plenty of Encores, Including Cousa Marches.

Close to 15,000 people gave the United States Marine band a hearty welcome on its return to St. Louis after a quarter of a century's absence, at its two performances yesterday afternoon and evening at the Municipal Theater in Forest Park. The weather was ideal, the woodland setting was perfect for the uniformed band of the Marines and a good brass band does not have to trouble about acoustics. Taylor Branson, the leader, blond, serious and unsmiling and in full regalia, including his sword, conducted without score and nautical his company with a precision that was a pleasure to witness.

The program contained two numbers that have been given at symphony concerts here, the overture to "The Flying Dutchman," by Wagner, and Dvorak's "Carnaval." The other composers ranged from Victor Herbert to Saint Saens with "Chopin, Liszt and Massenet in between. It sounded heavy but it was not. "Carnaval" and Liszt's second rhapsody were especially well received. Four soloists, Arthur S. Witcomb and Herbert Clarke, cornetists; Robert E. Clarke, trombone; and Wilbur L. Kieffer with a xylophone, were called again and again. There was a memory of Sousa running through the performance as it is to be hoped there always will be in this famous organization which America's "March King" conducted in the '80's. Conductor Branson led the band in singing, "Semper Fidelis," the Marine's hymn. Other Sousa pieces among the extra numbers were "Stars and Stripes" and "U. S. Field Artillery." The encores were liberally given and warmly received. Altogether it was a thoroughly satisfying performance.

WHAT REGIONAL PLANNERS HAVE DONE IN CHICAGO

municipal airport and decentralization of business, an instance being the big, new Marshall Field department store in Evanston.

It is impossible for a stranger to tell where Chicago stops and the surrounding suburbs begin. The immediate metropolitan area is huge and presents many governmental problems. Among things seen by the planners in the outlying area were:

Location of the first of a series of outer parkway drives, similar to the famous work in Westchester County, N. Y., in southwestern Cook County. Plans will be announced soon for such improvements along the Des Plaines River and Chicago Drainage Canal.

Extensive county forest preserves, embracing beautiful woodlands and rolling ground, and served by fine roads. At one such place the site of the Chicago portage chosen by Marquette, Joliet and others, the sanitary district agreed in less than 30 days, at the instance of the region planners to turn over the management of the land to the experts of the preserve district.

Subdivisions platted with wide highway rights-of-way.

Illustrations of road beautification by use of long curves instead of tangents.

Many miles of existing and proposed widening of highways from 20 to 40 feet by the county and State; numerous grade crossings eliminated or proposed to be eliminated, including crossings of highways as well as railways.

Studied improvement of the design of the huge gas tanks around the county, to make them less objectionable in appearance.

Zoning "Revised Upward."

Attractive appearance of the business districts of Winnetka and Glencoe, high class North Shore suburbs, through voluntary co-operation brought about by citizens' bodies. A section of Winnetka where some were "revised upwards" by reducing the number of homes permissible to the acre from six to two. A 10-acre eyecore between Wilmette and Kenilworth, on the North Shore, where roadhouses and roadside stands are thick because the spot is unincorporated.

The beginning of road marker installation, which Cook, Du Page and Lake Counties will complete this winter, designating county highways by letter combinations; the roads are a labyrinth to a stranger now.

A large township high school, far out on the prairie between Park Ridge and Des Plaines; in anticipation of almost certain spread of population.

Cook County merchants are protesting against the prevalence of roadside stands, which purport to sell "homegrown products"—including bananas—and the region may do something about this. New Jersey requires a license for such stands and limits stock of non-homegrown goods to 20 per cent.

Chicago has two novel transportation services growing out of traffic congestion. From the municipal airport in the southwestern part of the city a traveler can take an amphibian plane to the lake front at the loop. From Michigan avenue, in the loop, he can take a speedboat in the Chicago River to the Northwestern and adjacent railway stations—a four-minute trip for 25 cents.

gation, the conference found that during the year there had been no diminution in the number of cases due to the large number of prohibition prosecutions. On June 30 there were pending in the Federal courts 149,033 cases compared with 147,142 a year previous, of which 31,506 were criminal compared with 30,375 a year previous. The largest single class of cases are those under the prohibition law, of which 11,237 civil and 56,786 criminal were brought during the year ending June 30, compared with 9953 civil and 55,729 criminal during the previous year.

Cause of Increase.
A large part of the increase in civil cases was attributed to conditions along the Canadian border in condemnation proceedings of land for Government use and to suits arising out of the war.

The conference found that all of the Circuit Courts throughout the country, with the exception of the Sixth, clean up each year all cases brought before them, and the conference stated that the Sixth, with its Judges restored to health and with the assistance given them, would soon catch up.

The appointment of additional District Judges at Los Angeles, New York City and for Minnesota was recommended.
Changes in the rules in padlock cases, asked for by the District Judges at New York City, were referred to the Supreme Court for its consideration in view of constitutional questions involved.

BOILED FILLET OF HADDOCK

A Very Savory Way of Preparing This Ocean Fish.

For a two-pound fillet use one teaspoon salt, few grains pepper, tiny piece bay leaf, two slices lemon and two cups boiling water.

Wipe fish clean and cut into service pieces. Add salt, pepper, bayleaf and lemon to water; let boil slowly five minutes.

Add fish and bring very slowly to boiling point and simmer 30 minutes. Remove from water, drain well. Place on service platter and dress with two tablespoons chopped parsley and lemon butter.

Home Economics

Grapefruit Dessert.

Peel and separate the sections of the grapefruit and oranges. Remove the skin from the sections and arrange the grapefruit and orange sections alternately on a plate to form a flower. Put a few raisins in the center of the flower, and sprinkle coconut over the top of the fruit. Thoroughly chill and serve as a dessert.

THREE DIFFERENT MEALS FROM A ROAST OF LAMB

This Cut Is Not Expensive Because Every Particle May Be Utilized.

Depending on the size of the family select either a leg, a shoulder or a piece of the loin for the roast.

Allow 20 minutes of cooking for each pound and 25 minutes extra to provide for the first heating. Have the oven very hot for the first 20 minutes—450 degrees—then reduce the heat to a moderate temperature—350 degrees—and finish cooking. A covered roaster will keep the meat from drying out during cooking, and does away with the necessity for basting. If cooked in an open pan, baste every 20 minutes.

Peel the potatoes and cook around the meat for 40 to 50 minutes, depending on size.

The left-over lamb is reheated in gravy for the next night. The addition of a large spoonful of currant or cranberry jelly to the gravy will give it an entirely different flavor.

Hot lamb sandwiches made by chopping up the ends of the meat, mixing with gravy and seasoning it well, are served for luncheon on the third day.

The meat mixture is to be heated, spread in a thick layer between two slices of toast, garnished with mint jelly or sweet pickled peaches and served hot as possible.

FIRST AID HELPS FOR FAMILY COOKS

Helpful Ideas That Will Simplify Housekeeping for the Novice.

There are tricks in all trades, short cuts perhaps to efficiency, or bits of information culled through experience and by necessity, or handed on from one person to another, even as these.

Cook books, presupposing considerable knowledge on the part of their readers, seldom include them, and often the novice is left at a critical moment floundering around in despair because the cream won't whip, the custard has curdled, the fruit gelatin refuses to jell and the cream of tomato soup has simply ruined itself.

Such moments require first aid treatments as truly as do burns, cuts and such things.

There are a number of them—in fact almost every housekeeper has one or two pet ones in addition to what might be called common properties—but because space and time are limited, we will have to consider those most met with.

Cream that won't whip is a common ailment that can often be cured by adding an unbeaten egg white to the cream, chilling the mixture and then whipping again. Quick chilling by standing the dish of cream in a bowl of cracked ice will usually give better results than slower chilling, especially at this time of year.

Another remedy is the addition of a small amount of gelatin—one teaspoon to a half pint of cream is enough. Soak the gelatin in a tablespoon of cold water for five minutes, then dissolve over hot water and stir into the chilled cream. Let stand for five minutes, then whip. The gelatin will stiffen the cream a little more than the egg white, but the process is a bit longer.

Mayonnaise is another product that often separates in the making. When the separation first begins, a few drops of boiling water will often bring the mixture together again. Sometimes it is also necessary to beat this combination into another egg yolk, and then you can proceed as you began—adding the oil very slowly and beating constantly.

Gelatin mixtures can always be hurried into hardening by placing them in a pan of cracked ice and water. If it is a very hot day it is a good plan to add a little ice cream salt to the water. In making fruit relishes, beware of using fresh pineapple, for it contains a substance that dissolves the gelatin. Canned or cooked pineapple is safe and delicious to use.

A smooth cream of tomato soup is a delight, but to keep it that way is oftentimes a difficult matter unless you understand the combining of materials. Tomato juice or pulp is acid, therefore it should be added to the milk slowly and gradually, stirring the mixture all the time. Both the milk and the tomatoes must be hot. One-fourth teaspoon baking soda added to the tomatoes will neutralize some of the acid.

PANED PORK CHOPS

This Is a Very Savory Way of Cooking Rib or Loin Cuts.

Wipe pork chops with a damp cloth. Sprinkle them with salt and pepper and dust lightly with flour. Place the chops in a heavy hot skillet with the fat edge down, so to brown the fat and at the same time grease the skillet. Turn the chops and brown them lightly on both sides.

Pour off the fat that has cooked out, cover the skillet closely and continue to cook at very moderate heat until the meat is tender. Turn the chops occasionally to cook them uniformly.

Chops of ordinary thickness (about one-half inch) will require about 20 minutes to cook after they have been lightly browned.

ALLURING BANANA MOUSSE

A Very Rich Dessert Which Should Be Served Sparingly.

Run through a sieve enough bananas to make two cups of pulp. To this add one cup of sugar. Whip one pint of cream until it is stiff and add one-half cup of sugar. Fold the cream and the bananas together until they are well mixed. Either freeze in the mold packed in four parts of ice to one of salt, or in the automatic refrigerator. This gives a very rich mousse and should be served in small portions. Fully ripe bananas should be used in the mousse, but they should not be dark or have dark spots through them, as they would lessen the appearance of the mousse.

Apple Roll.

Make a crust of two cups of flour, one-half cup of milk, one teaspoon baking powder, a pinch of salt, one level teaspoon of butter, and one egg well beaten. Roll out very thin and cover with thin slices of apples. Make into a roll and place in a pudding dish. Set in boiling water. Serve with sweetened cream.

A Breakfast Dish.

Wipe three large firm tomatoes and cut in halves crosswise. Sprinkle with a little salt, pepper and sugar, and place in a pan. Arrange two or three slices of bacon on each place of tomato and place in a hot oven or under a broiler until bacon is crisp. Remove to a hot platter.

There is Always a Right Way and a Wrong Way to Do Things.

Do not use too much flour on the board for rolling pastry. piece of canvas or a heavy flour spread out and well floured more satisfactory for rolling dough than a board or enamel surface. The meshes of the cloth hold just the right amount of flour to keep the dough from sticking. The cloth may be shaken out at each use and folded up for next time—it does not have to be washed after every pie.

Roll only one crust at a time using a gentle pressure and roll from the center out. Lift up edges of the crust occasionally to see whether it is sticking. If necessary, sprinkle a little flour under the crust.

Fit the crust carefully into curves of the pan, leaving no spaces to bulge the crust up during baking. If the crust is to be baked before adding the filling, prick it generously with a fork. This will also help to eliminate "bubbles" in the crust.

Fasten two-crust pies well at edges by brushing the lower crust with water and pressing the top edge down with a fork or folding into scallops with the fork tips. The juice may be prevented from escaping, particularly in berry pies, by adding flour to the sugar used for sweetener. The upper crust should also be pricked or slashed occasionally to allow the escape of steam.

To prevent soaking of the lower crust, the surface may be sprinkled with flour or brushed with white before adding the filling. Bake all pastry in as hot an oven as possible, taking into consideration the kind of filling, of pie, etc.

Custard pies should be baked in a hot oven (375 degrees F.) set the crust, then the heat gradually reduced to 300 or even less, bake the custard slowly.

Apple pies should be baked 400 degrees until browning starts, the temperature reduced to 350 degrees, then the heat gradually reduced to 300 degrees. Bake the apples thoroughly. When the apples are cooked, the crust is cooked.

Pie crust, either plain or fluted, needs a hot oven (about 400 degrees F.). Puff paste also bakes best at high temperature, though for its shells it is well to reduce heat after raising to cook the top thoroughly.

LOSS OF APPETITE

When the Appetite Fails, Check On the Food Supply.

Lack of appetite in grown-ups and children has been found to be closely associated with a lack of those foods that supply vitamins.

This element is found abundantly in yeast, canned fresh tomatoes, eggs, whole grains and milk.

Therefore if you find that your taste for food is falling, or if you are having difficulty in getting the children to eat their meals, check up on your food supply. See that the above mentioned items are included in as large amount as possible.

ABOUT PASTRY AND LINING PIE PANS

There Is Always a Right Way and a Wrong Way to Do Things.

Do not use too much flour on the board for rolling pastry. A piece of canvas or a heavy towel spread out and well floured is more satisfactory for rolling the dough than a board or enameled surface. The meshes of the cloth hold just the right amount of flour to keep the dough from sticking. The cloth may be shaken out after each using and folded up for the next time—it does not have to be washed after every pie.

Roll only one crust at a time, using a gentle pressure and rolling from the center out. Lift up the edges of the crust occasionally to see whether it is sticking. If necessary, sprinkle a little flour under the crust.

Fit the crust carefully into the curves of the pan, leaving no air spaces to bulge the crust up during baking. If the crust is to be baked before adding the filling, prick it generously with a fork—this will also help to eliminate "bubbles" in the crust.

Fasten two-crust pies well at the edges by brushing the lower edge with water and pressing the upper edge down with a fork or by folding into scallops with the fingertips. The juice may be further prevented from escaping, particularly in berry pies, by adding flour to the sugar used for sweetening.

The upper crust should always be pricked or slashed occasionally to allow the escape of steam.

To prevent soaking of the lower crust, the surface may be sprinkled with flour or brushed with egg white before adding the filling.

Bake all pastry in a hot oven as possible, taking into consideration the kind of filling, size of pie, etc.

Custard pies should be started in a hot oven (375 degrees F.) to set the crust, then the heat quickly reduced to 350 or even less to bake the custard slowly.

Apple pies should be baked at 400 degrees until browning starts, the temperature reduced to cook the apples thoroughly. When a fork pierces the center easily, the apples are cooked.

The crust, either plain or flaky, needs a hot oven (about 400 degrees F.).

Puff paste also bakes best at high temperatures, though for pastries it is well to reduce the heat after raising to cook the center thoroughly.

When the Appetite Fails, Check Up On the Food Supply.

Lack of appetite in grown-ups and children has been found to be closely associated with a lack of those foods that supply vitamin B.

This element is found most abundantly in yeast, canned or fresh tomatoes, eggs, whole grain cereals and milk.

Therefore if you find that your taste for food is failing, or if you are having difficulty in getting the children to eat their meals, check up on your food supply, and see that the above mentioned items are included in as large amounts as possible.

WHEN FALL COMES WE EAT MORE FILLING BREAKFASTS

Cold Weather Demands More Fuel Food Be Eaten Every Day.

The occasional day is cold and dark and dreary at this time of year, but most of us associate fall with crisp air, warm sunshine, bright foliage and the dry, sweet fragrance of fallen leaves. These are the mornings when breakfast tastes good. We want something which will give a contented feeling before we go out to the day's work.

There are almost as many kinds of breakfasts as there are families in the world. The ideal morning meal includes foods which provide regulating and building material and fuel.

The first may be supplied by fruit, the second by eggs or meat and milk; the third by cereals, toast and butter. The important thing is to have a variety each day.

There are many interesting and healthful breakfast combinations, especially suitable for this time of year. In many parts of the country, cantaloupe is still delicious. Apples are ripe for baking, stewing and sauces; oranges, grapefruit are with us and there is a long list of dried fruits. Ready-to-eat cereals are especially appetizing served with any of the above fruits or honey.

For the main course, eggs hold first place, but they need not always be cooked the same way.

Replace toast with muffins occasionally. These can be mixed the night before. Fill muffin pans with the batter; cover them with oiled paper and bake them the next morning.

A New Idea.

Slice tomatoes up and down rather than crosswise. By doing this you will get more slices from each tomato. Also the slices will be harder and firmer.

USE TIME TABLE FOR COOKING VEGETABLES

Home Cooks Will Find the Subjoined Information Very Helpful.

Everything seems to be standardized, even cooking. Where guess work formerly held sway in the realm of cookery, we now find that the time table has reduced baking and boiling and sautéing to a matter of minutes.

In this connection, the subjoined time table for cooking vegetables will be found very useful by home cooks:

Vegetables	Boiling or steaming
Artichokes (Jerusalem)	40 to 50 minutes
Asparagus	20 to 30 minutes
Lima Beans	40 to 60 minutes
String Beans	45 to 60 minutes
New beans	30 to 45 minutes
Brussels sprouts	20 to 30 minutes
Cabbage	10 to 45 minutes
Carrots	20 to 30 minutes
Cauliflower	30 to 40 minutes
Corn	7 to 12 minutes
Kale, spinach and endive	30 minutes
Egg plant	25 minutes
Onions	40 to 60 minutes

Parasols 60 minutes
Peas 30 to 35 minutes
Potatoes 45 minutes
Summer squash 30 to 35 minutes
Winter squash 1 1/2 hours
Turnips 45 to 60 minutes
Tomatoes 15 to 20 minutes
Note—The time of cookery varies according to the age of the vegetable.

STRING BEANS WITH ONIONS

A Tasty Combination of These Seasonable Vegetables.

Use the small white onions, allowing about half as many onions as beans, or a dozen onions to a pound of beans. Snap the ends from the beans, cut the beans in small pieces, cover with boiling water, add one-fourth teaspoon sugar, one teaspoon salt and cook rapidly for 30 minutes.

Peel the onions and cook in boiling, salted water for the same length of time.

Drain the vegetables and put both together in a buttered baking dish. Cover with one cup of thin white sauce spread with buttered bread crumbs and brown in a hot oven.

Food Value of Fruits.
Some fruits contain sufficient starch or sugar to make them valuable as sources of energy. In this class are bananas, prunes, dates, grapes and figs, and it is for this reason that these are regarded as the most nutritious fruits.

BAKED STUFFED SQUASH

Most Persons Relish This Way of Preparing This Vegetable.

Use the large, round white or yellow squash for this. Wash, cut a slice from the top, or stem end, and scoop out most of the center, using a strong spoon. Separate the seeds from the pulp and cut or chop the pulp in small pieces.

Mix this with one cup of soft bread crumbs, two cups of chopped cooked ham, tongue or leftover roast, one small onion chopped fine, one tablespoon minced parsley, two teaspoons salt and one beaten egg.

Stuff the squash shell with the mixture and spread a layer of buttered bread crumbs over the top. Place on a greased baking pan and bake in a moderate oven for 10 minutes, or until the squash is tender. Serve very hot, either plain or with a thin cream of tomato sauce.

Oyster Cocktail.

Mix eight small raw oysters, one tablespoon tomato catsup, one-half tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice, two drops tabasco, salt, one teaspoon celery, finely chopped and one-half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Chill thoroughly in refrigerator. Serve in cocktail glasses, or cases made from green pepper placed on a bed of crushed ice.

Modern Mothers Demand Perfect Food for Children

EVERY mother wants her children to be robust, sturdy, keenly active and free from illness. She wants them to be eager for play and hungry at meal times.

Modern mothers know that sunshine, fresh air, exercise and plenty of rest are very important in a child's physical development.

The Part Food Plays

Child specialists tell them that food also plays a vitally important part in helping keep children strong and sturdy.

The ideal food provides proteins to build firm, solid flesh... vitamins for life and growth... calcium and phosphorus for strong bones and teeth... iron to give them red blood and rosy cheeks... and an abundance of carbohydrates to supply them with energy.

Nature put all these essential body-building food elements in whole wheat.

Ralston cereal and Ralston Wheat Flakes are whole wheat in its most delicious forms.

Whole Wheat at Its Best

Ralston contains all the vital elements... all the natural, appetite-awakening goodness of sun-ripened whole wheat. Ralston Wheat Flakes is the same golden whole wheat flaked and toasted. Thick, crisp flakes and... oh, so good!

Two cheerful young ladies were wanted to rent the spare room in a private home. A Post-Dispatch Room For Rent advertisement found them promptly.

TWO PAIRS ROBBED OF AUTO; FORCED TO GO INTO WOODS

Men and Women Lose $2, $26 Check, Watch and Ring to Armed Thief on Watson Road.

INTRUDER GETS $63 AT KINGDOM HOUSE

Five Card Players Forced to Turn Over $40 in Rooming House on Laclede Avenue.

Four persons in an automobile on the Watson road a quarter mile beyond the city limits were held up at 7:30 o'clock last night by an armed man who made them walk into a nearby woods, robbed them of $2, a $26 check, a watch and ring, and drove off with the car. Those held up were: Norman Barton, 2916 Caroline street; William Cooper, 3002 Park avenue; and Miss Lucille Lewis and Miss Meda Stillman of 4337 Hunt avenue.

George De Veto, 4353 Botanical avenue, was driving on Watson road near McKinley road when a man with a mask and a club jumped on the running board in an attempted holdup. De Veto grabbed the weapon, shoved the man off and drove on.

Five young men playing cards in a rooming house at 2719 Laclede avenue were held up and robbed of $40 by three men who brushed past the landlady, Mrs. Anna Holt, when she answered the doorbell. The robbery was reported by one of the players, Howard Marshall, 3519 Lindell boulevard.

A man inquired for a resident of the Kingdom House, 1106 Hickory street and, when the cook, Mrs. Minnie Bates, informed him he was the only one home, locked her in a washroom and took $63 from rooms of three residents.

John Lynch, 1233 North Euclid avenue, fought off a highwayman near Delmar and Union boulevards, the robber dropping Lynch's purse and running away. Lynch suffered scalp wounds.

BLUE LAW VIOLATORS PRAISED BY MAGISTRATE

He Says It's Better to Play Football on Sunday Than Hang Around Speakeasies.

By the Associated Press.

NEW MARKET, N. J., Oct. 7.—Twenty-two youths, members of opposing football teams, were arrested yesterday for breaking New Jersey's blue laws, and then were praised by a Justice of the Peace for "engaging in such a healthy game instead of hanging around corners and frequenting speakeasies."

The controversy over enforcement of the old laws in Piscataway Township yesterday found the township closed "tight as a drum," according to Chief of Police Elmer Barrett.

Justice R. P. F. von Minden released the football players in their own recognition for appearance Oct. 17, after commending them.

A plumber and carpenter, also arrested on charges of violation of the blue laws, were required to give bail of $200 each for appearance Oct. 18.

Why not a "Bank Examiner" for your LUMBER?

THE Southern Pine Association is sponsoring the Grade-Marking program of the Mississippi Valley Lumber Institute. Each of the 43 yards in the Institute grades its own lumber according to the rules of the Southern Pine Association. But the impartial expert grader of the Southern Pine Association, makes a periodical inspection of each individual yard, to check the grade marking, just as the bank examiner makes a regular audit of the bank's books.

Backed by the Southern Pine Association

This gives the Grade-Marking program a background of validity that sets it apart from and beyond any question of mis-grading by any one yard. Furthermore the sponsorship of the Southern Pine Association means, that every yard in the Institute must adhere rigidly to the grading rules or else lose the backing of the Southern Pine Association.

Now you can buy Grade-Marked lumber with confidence. Now you can be certain that you are getting what you are paying for. The guesswork has been taken out of lumber buying and you get the benefit.

A Clear Complexion

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of men and women take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

The names of the two men visitors involved in the evidence are withheld by the Department of Justice agents, who entered the case after the grand jury denounced the police handling of the case and aroused the interests of Congress because of its responsibility for Government of the Capital.

Their evidence indicates that Mrs. McPherson first received, on her last night alive, an old friend. While he was there, she telephoned to a drug store ordering an orange-ade and a glass of milk, and later, this account relates, admitted a second man well known to her. An altercation between the two men is said to have followed with the result that the first arrival, finding his position uncomfortable and the door blocked by the newcomer, left by way of a window and an adjoining roof. The second arrival is then said to have prepared to leave. He turned, the evidence indicates, and seeing Mrs. McPherson almost ready to retire, tied the cord of her pajamas around her neck, strangling her, and then fled.

WHERE TWELVE LIVES WERE TAKEN IN COLORADO PRISON MUTINY

It was in this cell house that killer Danny Daniels, and leader of the revolt, shot down guard after guard when his demands for freedom were refused by the warden. And here, too, he dispatched two associates, a convict he regarded as a "snitch," and then committed suicide.

HUNT THE GARDEN IN THE AUTUMN (National Garden Bureau.)

Early tulips for brilliant color. For brilliant masses of color in early spring, the single and double early tulips are indispensable. They are the mainstay for gorgeous display in late April and early May. They are admirably adapted for formal beds and for color borders. While the late tulips with their taller stems and larger flowers have somewhat outstepped the earlier in popularity, there is a color blank in the garden if the early types of tulips are omitted.

The early tulips cover the full range of color in the tulip tribe, glowing scarlets, golden yellows, pure whites, delicate pinks, roses, crimsons, with a few lavender and purple tones. They also include edged and variegated types. Of this class, Kaiserkrone, brilliant red with a wide band of bright yellow in the center of the oldest known tulips in cultivation and one of the largest and most vigorous of the single early type.

The early tulips are best planted in sizable groups of a single color. Color cardinal and vermillion brilliant give a splash of dazzling red that cannot be surpassed during the year in intensity. They lend themselves to all the artistic genius a gardener may possess in the way of arranging effective color.

to play their part in the world, and that it was her duty to leave them free and even to drive them back upon themselves, lest she do violence to the life that was their hidden spring. Her work for them was spiritual. "It would be so easy to spoil them," she said. And on the last day when she had been told that her own hours were numbered she said to her husband, "Oh, put romance into the lives of the children! Teach them to know the things of the spirit."

As one sees MacDonald today with his children, now grown men and women, about him, one feels sure that he has carried out his wife's behest. Their baby, Sheila, always appealing to me because of her romantic name and the tragedy that overshadowed her birth, is a bonny girl, studying at the University of London. Joan is studying medicine at the University of Edinburgh. Isabel, the oldest of the daughters, left the University of London when her father was first made Prime Minister to do the social functions of Downing Street. She seems to take life very seriously. In 1926, when I was in London, her father was planning a flying trip to the United States, and I asked Isabel if she would accompany him. She said in an almost frightened tone, "Oh, no, I could not leave the Continent," to which her father responded playfully, "She is the honorary secretary of the School Committee, and she thinks it is her part to do all the work." She campaigned for her brother Malcolm in 1925, when a general election came on unexpectedly while he was on a deputation trip in the United States, and she campaigned for him again in the last election, in which he was victorious. She is now a member of the London County Council.

By Way of Welcome DO you welcome the coming guest with a clean door mat? Though it may seem insignificant, this lowly object may be the means of establishing a guest's impression of your home. A soiled and tattered door mat is likely to indicate untidiness within, while a fresh one gives promise of a household to match.

Because they are subject to hard usage, door mats should be washed at least once a month. Otherwise you will have extra work adding your floors and rugs of the dirt tracked in from out-of-doors. Place the mat on a flat surface and scrub both sides with hot soapy water. Rinse out the suds with clear, warm water. If possible, place in the sun to dry.
